MEXICO CITY IN STATE OF PANIC

Torpedo Boat Rammed by Dingley

Aviator Goes Up Five Miles.

BERLIN, July 14.—Aviator Selerich, flying in a monoplane, created a new altitude record today when he ascended 25,000 feet or about five miles.

STOPPED SUIT BY FRENCH

Simultaneously today in Boston, New York and Washington sensational developments followed the Interstate Commerce Commission's scathing denunciation of New Haven railroad methods.

In Boston, United States District Attorney Asa P. French stated that the Taft administration halted his plans to prosecute the New Haven after he had spent two years preparing facts, and had even entered a bill of equity against the New Haven, Boston & Maine and the Providence Securities Company.

In New York District Attorney Whitman said: "If the report of the commission shows that any crime has been committed in my jurisdiction, I will prosecute, regardless of whom the individual may be."

And in Washington, the Department of Justice intimated that the recommendations of the commission that criminal prosecutions be begun would be ignored. No criminal action can be brought," it was asserted.

The disclosures in Boston were the most sensational of the day. Mr. French told the story to the AMERICAN.

Mr. French said today he disliked very much to stop his investigation, because he felt certain it would have nipped in the bud many of the transactions which the Interstate Commerce Commission now condemns so bitterly and which proved so costly to the railroad systems of New England and thousands of stockholders.

HAD THE GOODS.

"Not only would it have revealed objectionable conditions," added Mr. French, "but it would have prevented many steps which are now so roundly deplored.

"I had entered the bill in equity for the purpose of getting at all the facts and making them public, and I was convinced from what I found after long and diligent study that there was ample ground for criminal prosecutions, but I had to follow orders from headquarters. I got my orders from Attorney-General Wickersham.

"Evidently officials at Washington felt that if the Massachusetts legislature passed an enabling bill and wished to take upon themselves the responsibility for blocking matters our inquiry had better end. In justice to Mr. Taft and Mr. Wickersham it should now be set forth clearly that they took this view of the situation and decided to end the federal inquiry.

"I was asked to stop on information that the Massachusetts legislature had passed the holding bill. But I hated to do it.

"I had planned on a full report on the equity proceedings of which this is a bound copy, and then criminal prosecutions would have followed.

READY TO ACT.

"We could have brought out all the startling facts in Boston at that time. I was sorry. It would have been a preventative.

"I have not yet received any orders

HOLE TORN IN THE RODGERS BY COLLISION

PORTLAND, Me., July 14.—The steamship Governor Dingley of the International Division of the Eastern Steamship Company, on her way from St. John to Boston, collided with the United States torpedo boat Rodgers in Portland harbor today.

A large hole was stove in the Rodgers when the plate well forward and below the water line was ripped off. The steamer stood by to give first aid, but the torpedo boat succeeded in reaching Brown's wharf under its own power. A detachment of the Massachusetts Naval Reserve on their way to Bar Harbor was aboard the Rodgers.

Eyewitnesses and marine men along the coast said that the Dingley was proceeding at a very low speed. They heard two shrill whistles given by Captain Clark, which meant that the Dingley should go astern of the Rodgers. This signal, it was said, was disregarded and Captain Clark started to back the steamer with no chance of avoiding the collision.

Captain Dudley M. Pray, the executive officer of the Rodgers, said that he heard the signals and did not answer them, as he did not believe that the Dingley would go astern, but thought that it would pass on the other side. It is believed that the Rodgers can be repaired at her mooring.

Automobile Knocks Down Aged Couple

An automobile owned and operated by Abraham Horowitz of No. 337 Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester, struck and knocked down Charles H. Waite, seventy-one, and his wife, Sarah J., sixty-eight, of No. 32 Church street, Lynn. Both are at the Haymarket Square Relief Hospital, suffering from the shock. According to witnesses Horowitz, whom the police claim only received his operator's license yesterday, had driven the machine into a lip cart and was endeavoring to back away when he struck the couple.

OBREGON MOVING ON CAPITAL

MEXICO CITY, July 14.—Constitutionalist soldiers are expected to be thundering at the gates of the capital within a very short time.

They have set out from Guadalajara to crush the last remnant of Federal opposition, and a feeling of panic is beginning to make itself felt here.

The government is being besieged by applicants begging that special trains be made up to carry them to the coast. The terror-stricken ones include both Mexicans and foreigners. Their fears were heightened by an official admission from the War Office that Guadalajara had been evacuated.

Minister of War Blanquet stated that the Federals had withdrawn to Irapua, and General Obregon is leading his forces against that town.

HUERTA'S FAMILY TO LEAVE.

Huerta's family, according to reports prevalent in the capital, is expected to leave for Vera Cruz some time today and will probably embark on the steamship Espagne.

The Espagne, which plies between Vera Cruz, Havana and several Spanish ports, already has a number of prominent Huerta officials aboard.

It is reported here that the delay in the departure of the steamship Espagne is due to the fact that several prominent persons who have not yet reached that city are planning to sail on that ship.

HUERTA DRINKING HEAVILY.

VERA CRUZ, July 14.—That President Huerta is drinking heavily again after an abstinence of several weeks and is wavering between a desire to escape from the country and a wish to fight his enemies to the end, is the tenor of latest reports received from the capital today. His steady companion is said to be Jose Maria Lozano, the former cabinet minister, whose influence several times has thwarted the efforts of foreign diplomats to influence Huerta to resign.

The dictator has announced that hereafter his office hours will be 1 p. m. to 2 a. m. at the Cafe Colon, famous for its bar.

Americans arriving from Mexico City say the dictator announced at a special meeting of the Senate Saturday evening that he had no intention of resigning.

Mount Lassen Is Again in Eruption

REDDING, Cal., July 14.—Mount Lassen, after several weeks of idleness, has resumed its activities and today a strange combination of black and white smoke or steam emerged from the crater. This was the seventh eruption of the volcano recently.

Here Is Why It's Cool---Fleet of Icebergs Loose

The captains of incoming steamships today reported seeing a large number of icebergs in the North Atlantic Ocean.

Captain McKillop of the Allan liner Numidian said today: "I passed more than thirteen icebergs and a large number of 'growlers,' as well as a vast amount of small pieces of ice. I never saw so much of it."

Captain Prelepps of the Holland liner Soetdyk, from Rotterdam, said: "Last Friday in a dense fog I detected the noise of falling ice and stopped the ship until the next morning, when I found the icebergs around us, many of them smelting when coming in contact with the Gulf Stream. I had to take the greatest precaution in getting away."

Cardinal Gibbons Returns From Rome

NEW YORK, July 14.—Cardinal Gibbons, who sailed on May 2 to attend a consistory of Cardinals in Rome returned today on the North German Lloyd liner Berlin. The Cardinal visited Switzerland, Belgium and Ireland. In Wexford the Cardinal found condition which, he was told, were typical of the rest of Ireland.

"Nearly nine-tenths of the former tenants are land-owners," he said. "This is due to the law created through the efforts of Gladstone, enabling the Irish people to buy land on easy terms.

Cardinal Gibbons, as archbishop of Baltimore, will receive $282,055.18 under the will of the late Eliza Andrews, a wealthy Catholic, whose administration account has just been passed by the Maryland Supreme Court.

To Show How to Farm with Dynamite

Safety first—do you know how to use dynamite properly?

Secretary Wilfred Wheeler of the State Board of Agriculture notifies the AMERICAN that there will be "a demonstration of the use of dynamite in agriculture" at the Valley Field Farm, State road, Lexington, at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

The demonstration will show blasting rocks without drilling, removing stumps, sub-soiling, dynamiting for tree planting and ditching.

WIFE CONFESSED DICTAGRAPH STORY ON NIGHT OF DEATH

FREEPORT, L. I., July 14.—The Nassau County Grand Jury today began an investigation of the murder of Mrs. Louise Bailey, who was shot to death in the office of Dr. Edwin Carman.

District Attorney Lewis J. Smith said he would ask for an indictment against Mrs. Carman, who is now in the Mineola Jail charged with the crime.

William D. Bailey, husband of the slain woman, and the victim's mother, Mrs. Jennie Duryea, both testified that they did not know that Mrs. Bailey had gone to consult Dr. Carman on the night she was shot. Mr. Bailey did not even know that his wife was ill.

Dr. William H. Rundle, who was called in by Dr. Carman, was regarded as one of the most important witnesses before the Grand Jury.

"I was eating my dinner shortly before 8 o'clock on the night of June 30," said Dr. Rundle, "when the telephone bell rang and Dr. Carman said over the wire: 'Come right over, something terrible has happened.' I hurried over and found Archie Wallace assisting Platt Conklin, father of Mrs. Carman, from an automobile.

CARMAN EXCITED.

"Celia Coleman, the maid, was standing on the lawn.

"The body of Mrs. Bailey was lying upon a couch in the doctor's office with the blood running from the mouth, showing that she had not been dead very long. Dr. Carman was very much agitated. He exclaimed, 'A terrible thing has happened. This will ruin my practice.'

"Later he exclaimed, 'This is a devil of a note.' Then he advised me to go upstairs and quiet the woman.

"I found Mrs. Carman upstairs in negligee. She wore a wrapper, but her feet were bare. When she saw me she started forward, saying sharply, 'Doctor Rundle, something has happened in my husband's office.' She continued a moment later, 'Oh, doctor, I'm so worried. I placed a dictagraph in the doctor's office. What will people say of this? They will be suspicious of him.'"

This was the first time that Mrs.

Peace in Ulster Despite Threats of "Civil War"

BELFAST, July 14.—Despite the acute tension and threats of civil war between the Ulster Unionists and the Irish Nationalists tranquility was reported throughout the province today, and many of the special police who were sent here and to other communities to preserve order during the celebration of the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne were sent home.

Noisy celebrants were in the streets throughout the greater part of the night, but their actions led to nothing serious. The preservation of good order is attributed mainly to the self restraint of the Nationalists (the supporters of home rule), who avoided doing anything which would result in friction.

Crusade Against Mashers in Autos

An active crusade against chauffeurs and automobile owners has been inaugurated by Captain Sullivan of the City Hall avenue station. The police claim that a great many of these drivers ride up and down the streets of the down-town district and hang around the beach wharves trying to make acquaintances with young women.

TEMESTER BREAKS BACK IN FALL.

PATIENT KILLS DOCTOR AND THEN HIMSELF.

CHICAGO, July 14.—Brooding over the fact that he had been forced to pay out most of his wages for medical treatment, Anton Truskowski, a laborer, today shot and killed Dr. E. H. Steere in his office and then committed suicide.

POISON IN LETTER SENT MRS. CARMAN

Carman had betrayed the presence of the dictograph and her manner and words are regarded as having an important bearing upon her case.

Sheriff Pettit today began an investigation of an alleged plot to poison Mrs. Carman.

POISON IN LETTER.

A letter containing a quantity of white powder, supposed to be strychnine, was received by Mrs. Carman at the jail, with the advice scrawled on a single sheet of paper: "Take one dose of this and you will feel all right."

The authorities refused to discuss the letter or its contents until the powder could be analyzed and the work of tracing the letter started.

Mrs. Carman turned the letter and its contents over to her husband, Dr. Edwin Carman. Both the accused and her husband expressed considerable alarm over the missive, and it was feared that the episode will have a serious effect upon the health of Mrs. Carman, destroying as she is now carrying a child.

HOPES FOR INDICTMENT.

"My wife received a letter containing white powder which I believe to be strychnine," admitted Dr. Carman. "We have not the faintest idea who could have sent the letter and what the powder have been turned over to the authorities to investigate.

NEW STORY BY MAID.

A new light was thrown on the Carman prosecution today when Detective Sheridan issued a statement concerning the whereabouts and possible new story of Celia Coleman, the negro girl who was employed by Dr. Carman.

Sheridan admitted the girl has amplified her testimony and said she would be produced at the proper time.

Then, it would be shown he added, whether any underhanded methods had been used in the dealings with the witness, Burns stated.

Mr. Levy must be dreadfully afraid about the Coleman girl. No wonder he is throwing a fit. Likewise Dr. Carman, as he sees he has become of the girl. We are trying to apply a little intelligence and common sense to this investigation and I will not be swerved from my duty.

Let me direct the attention of the public to just one fact. If Mrs. Carman is innocent, why should not her husband and herself and all of her family invite the very closest scrutiny of their household and every person connected with it instead of, on the other hand, seeking to prevent us from getting at the facts?

Celia Coleman, the Carman maid, will be called before the Grand Jury Wednesday or Thursday, according to the present plans of the district attorney. Her whereabouts are believed to be known to the prosecutors, but have not been revealed. Neither will the district attorney say whether or not she has changed her story to the effect that she was in the kitchen all the evening of the shooting and that neither Mrs. Carman nor anyone else had appeared there or passed through the kitchen door to or from the yard where Dr. Carman claims the death shot was fired.

MOTHER MAY TESTIFY.

District Attorney Smith believes he has discovered discrepancies and contradictions in the stories told by Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Carman's sister. He also sought to learn today whether Mrs. Platt Conklin, Mrs. Carman's mother, reported in a dying condition, was really as ill as to prevent her appearing as a witness.

Her testimony is deemed of the utmost importance, as she alone appears to have held the intimate confidence of her daughter.

The mother was the first of the family besides Mrs. Carman to be told who knew of the installation of the dictograph by which the accused wife sought to overhear the conversation which passed between Dr. Carman and his women friends.

She accompanied Mrs. Carman to New York when the dictograph was secured. No previous attempt has been made to get her story. Mrs. Carman's counsel, Attorney Levy, has promised to let the district attorney know today if it will be possible for Mrs. Conklin to testify.

Information concerning the direction of an automobile ride that Dr. Edwin Carman took alone on the night that Mrs. Bailey was murdered in his office was sought eagerly today by District Attorney Smith. In the theory of the police after they had been called into the case the movements of Dr. Carman at the time seemed to have excited them.

Now it is established that at 11 o'clock that night, while most of the detectives were following bloodhounds sent on the trail of a supposed fugitive, who was believed to be the slayer, Dr. Carman took his automobile out alone.

DENIES TAKING WEAPON.

He had previously looked well to its mechanism, being particular about its lights, before making his run.

Where he went is one of the mysteries that, linked together, make the sailing of Mrs. Bailey most difficult of solution.

It had been the general belief that Dr. Carman's first auto ride after the shooting was taken on the following morning. In the exclusive examination he has undergone he has denied, among other things, that he took a .38-caliber revolver from the house with him when he took that ride.

Widespread search by the detectives for the revolver with which the murder was committed, resumed today, has been on the lots. The search began in the Carman home and has been extended throughout the marshland creek region, which it was thought might have been made its hiding place.

Inspectors Take Man for Blackmail

Michael J. Conroy of Brooklyn, alias "Doc" Gardner, was arrested by Inspectors Sheehan, Conboy, Gaddis and Pierce on Atlantic avenue today.

Unwritten Law, Dorothy Dix's Plea for Women

By DOROTHY DIX.

The case of Mrs. Carman, who is accused of having killed another woman of whom she was jealous in her husband's office, opens up an interesting problem for the women who are crying out for equal rights.

It is this: How does a woman stand before the "unwritten law"? Has a woman the same right to protect her home that a man has? Is a woman just as much justified in slaying the despoiler of her happiness as a man is?

When a man kills the rival who threatens the security of his home he appeals to the unwritten law. In many parts of the country this appeal is never in vain.

In the South and West there is no record, so far as I can recall, of a husband having been punished for slaying the man who has violated the sanctity of his heartstone and stolen away the affections of his wife.

And, incidentally, it is noticeable that in those sections where the rule of the unwritten law prevails, and where a man takes his life by his hands when he pouches on another man's domestic preserves, scandals are much less frequent than they are here in the effete East, where family dishonor is assessed in dollars and cents in alienation suits. Undoubtedly killing is crude, but it is also effective, and there is no such discourager of flirtation as a .38-caliber automatic. Even the gayest Lothario gets a chill to his ardor when he thinks upon that end to a romance. Even the valiest woman halts before the probability of becoming accessory to the murder.

SAFEGUARDS THE GIRLS.

One of the reasons that girls in the South and the West go about unchaperoned, to the horror of those who do not understand the customs of the country, is because they are chaperoned by the unwritten law that makes it death for any man to abuse their confidence, and if this be "chivalry in America," as Delmas, of California, called it, let us pray that it is one form of insanity of which American men will never be cured.

HAS WOMAN THE SAME RIGHT?

Will a jury be likely to consider that a woman has the same right to defend her home that a man has to defend his? Will a jury consider that a woman's honor is just as dear to her as a man's is to him, and that it cuts into a woman's pride and self-respect just as much to know that her husband's amours are making her a laughing stock in the community as it galls a man's pride and self-respect to know that he is being made a dupe of, and scoffed at by, filling that most contemptible of all roles, the complacent husband?

Of course, in the past it has always been considered that it was a woman's place to suffer and be silent. It has been held to be the sweetly feminine thing for a wife to sit tamely by and see younger and fairer women steal a husband's love from her without raising a finger in protest; to say no word when her husband wandered away from his own fireside, but to be always ready to welcome the prodigal back with a glad, sweet smile when he chose to return; to even supinely submit when her husband lavished on his lady love the money that was needed for the support of the home, and to buy bread and shoes for the children.

Heretofore it has been just as much the unwritten law that a woman should submit without protest to the despoiling of her home as it has been the unwritten law that a man should avenge the despoiling of his home. What is going to be the result when women turn their backs upon the ancient woman's law, and appeal from it to the man's law?

TRIAL BY JURY OF PEERS.

I do not know, because women have not the constitutional right of being tried by a jury of their peers. But it takes no Solomon to tell what the verdict would be if such a case could be tried before a woman's jury, for women know that to a man the breaking up of his home is the worst, a wound from which he will in time recover, but to a woman the breaking up of her home is the ultimate tragedy, the annihilation of all that makes life worth living.

Chase Dorchester Phantom Light

If you wish to start anything go to Dorchester police station today and mention "Phantom lights." This is the reason: A telephone call came from Mrs. Edward J. Pendergast of No. 28 Bicknell street, saying that a light could be seen in the front windows of Raymond L. Boyce's house at No. 24, and as the Boyces were at the beach for the Summer, it might be a burglar. Policemen were rushed to the house in the auto patrol, and after an investigation found the light was the reflection of a light in the front window of a house opposite.

FRENCH READY TO ACT AGAINST THE NEW HAVEN

from Washington to act on the findings of the Interstate Commerce Commission, but when I do I shall lose no time.

"With the information already in hand augmented by evidence supplied by the Interstate Commerce Commission, I would not take long to get down to business here.

"We have a Federal Grand Jury ready for call at any hour."

Chairman Frederick J. Macleod of the Massachusetts Public Service Commission declares the disclosures will lead to quick action in bringing the situation before the Attorney-General of the Commonwealth. He said:

"There are certain aspects of the case which have a bearing on the violation by the New Haven of Massachusetts laws, and probably the Public Service Commission will take action on this phase of the situation. The thing first suggested for investigation is the control by the New Haven of the trolley lines in the western part of the State.

PELLETIER READY.

"As to the recovery by stockholders of the money dissipated by their directors, I believe that a good percentage of the amounts so lost can be got back. It will be a great miscarriage of justice if, after this investigation, conditions are to be allowed to go on without redress."

Attorney Sherman L. Whipple said today it would not be proper for him to discuss the matter, in view of the fact he is at work on the bill in equity to be filed in the Supreme Court against the New Haven and its directors for New England stockholders.

Although no ad damnum is ever named in an action of equity, this long-threatened suit seeks restitution of $125,000,000, alleged by shareholders to have been wantonly squandered.

District Attorney Pelletier of Suffolk County states he will indict and prosecute every New Haven official who has committed an illegal act in his jurisdiction if he can obtain sufficient evidence from the Interstate Commerce Commission or elsewhere.

'MLLE. X' AIDS MRS. HOLLISTER IN DIVORCE SUIT

NEW YORK, July 14.—A mysterious "Mlle. X" is the "other woman" in the divorce action brought by Hope Shepley Hollister, the beautiful Providence girl, against Henry H. Hollister, known on Wall Street as "Hip. Hip. Hooray" Hollister.

The identity of "Mlle. X." has been guarded and will continue to remain unknown, if all parties connected with the divorce have their way. It was learned today that "Mlle. X." appeared before Alexander R. Gulick, the referee, and produced documents and gave testimony which influenced him in arriving at a decision in favor of the wife. His report will be submitted today to Justice Donnelly for confirmation.

WOOES BRIDESMAID.

Hollister is the son of Henry H. Hollister, who died in 1909. The father was one of the oldest members of the New York Stock Exchange and a senior member of the banking firm of Hollister & Babcock. He left his stock exchange seat to his son. The latter was graduated from Yale. He is a member of the University Club, the Colony and the New York Athletic Club.

Hollister attended a wedding in Massachusetts in 1905, at which Miss Hope Shepley was one of the bridesmaids. After the wedding Hollister lingered for a time in the vicinity of Miss Shepley, and soon their engagement was announced. They were married the following year.

About a year ago there was a rumor of a rift. Later on Mrs. Hollister went to Providence to live with Mr. and Mrs. George L. Shepley, her parents, and her husband went to a club. When the court proceedings were started arrangements were made for a secret trial. The record shows that "Mlle. X." brought her diaries to the trial, and from them offered proof as to the dates when Hollister is alleged to have called on her from 1908 until 1912.

HUSBAND KEEPS DIARY.

One of the pages of the diary is alleged to have been written by Hollister, himself. He stated, among other things, the number of his telephone. "Mlle. X." also handed over letters which she had received from him during the four years preceding 1912.

The testimony of the mysterious woman was corroborated by maids. The evidence showed Hollister had maintained an apartment for the "other woman" from 1911 until quite recently.

Barry Presses Case Against Officer

Lieutenant-Governor Edward P. Barry requested today at the office of District Attorney Pelletier to ask that a representative of the District Attorney's office go to the South Boston court to prosecute the charge which Mr. Barry is pressing against Patrolman William Brown, who is accused of assaulting sixteen-year-old Daniel F. Hurley last Saturday.

MRS. HOPE SHEPLEY HOLLISTER, in whose divorce action against Henry H. Hollister a mysterious "Mlle. X." appears.

Charles E. Young and Bride on Honeymoon

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Young are traveling toward the Middle West on their honeymoon. Mrs. Young was formerly Miss Diamond Troutman of No. 137 Peterboro street, Fenway. Mr. Young is night editor of the Boston Post. The marriage took place in Trinity Church, Rev. Henry Goddard, assistant in St. Paul's Cathedral, officiating. Mrs. Dyneourt Neville of Bellows Falls, Vt., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. W. L. Dougherty of the Boston Journal, was best man. A reception followed at the home of Dr. A. G. Kendedy, No. 1,075 Boylston street. Mr. and Mrs. Young will live at No. 137 Peterboro street.

Belva Lockwood Is Ejected From Home

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Mrs. Belva Lockwood has been ejected by court order from the home in which she lived for fifty years, worked for woman's suffrage, ran her campaign for President, and received congratulations as the first woman admitted to the bar of the United States Supreme Court. The home was sold on a foreclosure order.

ROOSEVELT TO TALK POLITICS WITH WOMEN

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 14.—For the first time in his long and varied political career, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, the strenuous leader of the Progressives will hold a political conference with women tomorrow and will take counsel from them.

The colonel who will go to New York tomorrow for his regular Wednesday conferences at National Progressive headquarters, will be guest of honor at a luncheon with a number of the women members of the Progressive party at the Colony Club, an organization to which only women belong. It is expected that the women will urge the former President to run for Governor.

Kermit Roosevelt and his bride are expected here tomorrow. On Friday a reception will be held for the young bride and groom at Sagamore Hill.

Sees Good Times in Bank Deposits

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Secretary of Commerce Redfield today announced that he had received a letter from A. L. Holt, Commissioner of Savings Banks of Connecticut, showing that deposits for the month of June were more than $1,500,000 in his State. Redfield considers this a good showing for an industrial States of the population of Connecticut and a strong indication that there is no business depression there.

Cote Not Alarmed by Smallpox 'Epidemic'

MARLBORO, July 14.—Dr. Charles Cote of Salem, formerly of this city, who arrived here today, said that he thought the present smallpox epidemic would "be just what it was in Salem—a regular fizzle." Since the epidemic began on August 26, eleven patients have been sent to the smallpox hospital. Ten of them are from the French district.

MOLLIE FALLON, the West End girl who rescued a woman who is said to have attempted suicide by drowning.

Miss Mollie Fallon Tells Her Story of Rescuing Woman

Miss Mollie Fallon of No. 32 Nashua street, West End, told for the first time today the real story of her rescue of Mrs. Mary E. Geary who tried to commit suicide by leaping from the West Boston bridge into the basin.

"I was swimming in the girl's bath house, near the bridge," she said, "when Mr. Harrington came rushing in shouting that a woman was drowning. I hurried out, dove over the rail, and struck out toward the bundle of clothes about a 100 yards away.

"When I came near I could see it was a woman in the water. I caught her by the head with one hand and with the other started back toward the bath house. Then the police launch came along and a policeman reached over and hauled Mrs. Geary into the boat. I swam back to the bath house."

1281 ON LINERS SAILING FROM BOSTON TODAY

URGES STATE START BUREAU OF MATRIMONY

Rev. Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts, of the International Reform Bureau, of Washington, wants every State in the union to promote matrimonial bureaus.

For the past three days he has been in Boston conferring with the ministers on this plan.

He wants every young woman to get married at twenty-one and every young man at twenty-two.

He would give special consideration to the women in every State and city who are given to match-making.

Every boy at fourteen, who is earning money, should be required by his parents to put aside two dollars a week for his marriage until he is twenty-one. He calls this the marriage nest egg.

Every woman should be taught how to handle a baby at fourteen and to know what to give the baby when it has the colic besides sweetened water.

He has lived for the past nineteen years on $700 a year, has had a good time and kept his health. He says people do not know how to live or to get the most out of their money.

WELCOME TO CUPID.

Dr. Crafts left Boston last evening to speak of his plan to encourage early marriages before Summer schools. If Summer schools for co-education tend to love matches they have served a double purpose, he thinks.

"I'm a firm believer in early marriages. You eliminate divorces in many instances, if you have them," said Dr. Crafts. "I'd rather have a match-making person around me than many others who are finding fault with those persons.

"You take a woman in any community. If she is making love matches in that community she may be one of the most up-to-date persons to be found there.

"I will go one step further. I believe every State should have a matrimonial agency. The State should be in this business, as it is of the utmost importance to the State that young people marry early.

"The State should encourage every young man of twenty-two to be married. But, I hear the cry that the young man of twenty-two does not get salary enough.

BEGINS SAVING AS A BOY.

"Well, he ought to begin to think of marriage when he is fourteen and his parents should encourage him to save two dollars a week. If he does this, when he gets to be twenty-one he will have saved $500. Then young people have got to cut out so many unnecessary expenses. Cut out so much candy. Put it into a marriage fund. No young woman should think a young man loves her because he spends so much money upon her during the courtship. This is a great mistake.

Salem Fund Passes Half Million Mark

Over a half million dollars was today the total of the State Salem relief fund, the exact figures being $501,366.66. Miss Bertha MacArthur, secretary to Mayor Hurley of Salem, with eleven other Salem girls turned over to the relief fund $215.63, raised at the Boston-Cleveland game at Fenway Park on Saturday by selling tags to the fans.

BIG SOUTH AMERICAN FIELD FOR RIGHT MEN.

J. D. Prince of the U. S. Rubber Company has just returned from South America and is loud in his praise of the increased trade with that country.

"Don't go down to South America expecting to sweep everything before you," he said. "First gain the confidence of the people and don't talk business to them until you have impressed them that you are interested in their prospects. They would prefer to know you a little better before they give you a large or even a small order. They don't want any chamber of commerce to go down there. All they want is to meet a congenial individual and they will do business with him afterwards. Don't let your samples be better than the goods.

"We Americans do not pack our goods as well as others. We want to get the trade of the South American republics. We can get it but we must not hurry them up. Just go along easily with them. They like Americans. They want to trade with them and they would like to know about Boston, but when you send men down there to do business, let them be your best men. You'll see trade develop. They would rather trade with us than with the Germans or English."

TANGO MAY BE CAUSE OF YOUR FOOT TROUBLES.

Dr. M. H. Kassindorf of New York is asked constantly by a number of people at the fair why they have a pain in the foot. He then asks if they dance.

"The tango and maxixe and in many respects the complicated figures of the hesitation waltz, call for great flexibility of the ankle with much movement at this point, throughout the various intricate steps," he said. "The more common movements are those of extension, flexion and adduction of the feet. There is too much strain on the extensor muscles of the foot. Women should be very careful how much they dance."

SINGING SHOE MAN CHARMS HIS CUSTOMERS.

W. E. Broadhead of Leeds, England, has a voice like an English lark. He can soar up high with a tenor voice that makes his competitors pause when they hear it. "Billy" takes all the prizes for singing in his own land and, when he can't attract a customer any other way, then he begins to sing and, lo, a crowd is around his booth.

BOSTON SOFTENS HEART OF AT LEAST ONE "BACH."

John Melvenan of Wood, Malvenan Company, Glasgow, Scotland, is a bachelor, but since he's been around Boston and seen the many happy homes he's a changed man, and "Johnny" is now thinking of some one across the briny deep. He is very popular with every one but the "Scotch lassie" is in his mind.

ONLY 25 IN A THOUSAND GET SHOES THAT FIT.

Charles O. Brown of E. T. Wright Company of Rockland maintains that only about twenty-five persons in a thousand get the shoes that fit them.

"There should be a government inspector in every shoe store to see that the dealers give the people the right size in shoes," he urges. "Very few shoe stores keep the treble 'A' to double 'E.' They only have 'C' and 'D' widths. Only the very large stores have all the sizes but the small stores are fitting people to shoes that push their toes forward, finally make the wearers limp and put the foot out of commission. We inspect milk. We ought to have shoe stores inspected to prevent people becoming lame."

IDENTITY OF CHELSEA BABY BALKS POLICE

Chelsea has a "mystery child."

He is a pretty, golden-haired American baby, two-and-a-half years of age. His nice clothes and his dainty manner show breeding, but nobody knows who his parents are or where he came from.

Down at the Chelsea Day Nursery on Summer street, Matron Davidson calls the wanderer Paul.

Although Paul can say "hello" and a few other words, he wasn't taught his name or address, and that accounts for a mystery that has baffled the Chelsea police to date.

Two little girls found "Paul" wandering down Broadway on the afternoon before the Fourth. He had been abandoned, according to the police. The girls, aged twelve, brought the little fellow to the station house, though Pitaroy Grover was at the desk. He tried to get some information from the child, but failed.

That night "Paul" slept in the cell of Matron Hynd at the police station. He remained there all next day, but nobody called to claim him, and then he was placed in the care of Matron Cassie Davidson at the Day Nursery.

Matron Davidson said today:

"Paul is the best-behaved, cleverest child I ever saw. He is a little dear. We all love him. He is a pet among the children. He is refined and pretty and he was well dressed. He has dressed just as you see him now when they found him—white bonnet, white coat, blue rompers, black stockings and high tan button shoes.

"His clothing and appearance show that he came from people in good circumstances, which makes his abandonment all the more strange."

Rush Work on Dutch Liner Statendom

The Boston office of the Holland America line has received gratifying reports of the rapid work being done on the new steamship, Statendam, the newest addition to the Holland-American fleet, which was launched at Belfast, Ireland, July 3. Her registered tonnage is 25,000, with a displacement of 50,000 tons, and has accommodations for 4,500 persons.

Shoe and Leather Men Visit United Shoe Machinery Co.

A long line of automobiles, filled with Shoe and Leather men, left Mechanics Building today to visit the United Shoe Machinery Company in Beverly. This outing is one of the attractive events of the annual Boston Shoe and Leather week.

They passed through the cities of Chelsea, Lynn, Peabody and Salem, with a view of the latter fire-stricken city.

Luncheon was served in the company's clubhouse at Beverly, and then followed an inspection of the plant.

Afterwards the trip was continued further north to Manchester, through Beverly Farms, and then the return to Boston along the shore Boulevard route.

The trip was under the charge of Charles T. Cahill, chairman, with the co-operation of John S. Kent and Thomas F. Anderson, secretary of the general committee.

Robinson Counsel Given Time to File Exceptions in Case

Although the trial of Lawrence Robinson, under indictment for the death of Inspector Thomas Norton, is scheduled to begin next Monday, Attorney John H. Blanchard and his son, Hugh C., have been given until August 1 to file exceptions to the overruling of certain motions to quash the indictments.

Robinson's counsel have moved for a bill of particulars specifying the acts relied upon by the government and showing what, if anything, was done to the deceased at the time of the alleged murder.

To Ask Vote for Uruguay Women

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, July 14.—A bill granting to Uruguayan women the same political rights as are possessed by men on condition that they are not incapacitated by any clause in the constitution will be presented to the Chamber of Deputies today.

Women are not strong enough to carry heavy scuttles of coal up stairs nor to do half the heavy work that many of them are doing. There is no necessity for doing it, either.

For instance, on washday there is no need to stand all day long over a steaming tubful of wet clothes, rubbing out the dirt on a washboard, or lifting a heavy boiler to and from the stove. Instead, put the clothes to soak in cool water with Fels-Naptha Soap. After they have soaked a while, rub them lightly. The dirt will roll out.

Fels-Naptha Soap takes out stains of all kinds. It dissolves grease, and brightens up everything. Works best in cool or lukewarm water.

Mrs. Neverthrough Learns a Lesson

Mrs. Neverthrough—"Mercy! My fire's nearly out. Just come in, Anty Drudge. Sit down, and excuse me for a minute while I run down and get some coal. It seems to me that I can't keep enough coal upstairs, the fire needs so much on washdays. I'm tired with running up and down."

Anty Drudge—"Dear me! I wonder how many women there are like you, wearing out their lives doing unnecessary things? You don't need coal for a hot fire if you wash with Fels-Naptha Soap. Try it and see how much easier washdays will be after this."

Follow the directions on the Red and Green Wrapper.

Better buy Fels-Naptha by the carton or box.

AVIATOR WEBSTER TELLS OF NANTASKET FLIGHT

The success of Clifford Webster's flights at Nantasket Sunday was so remarkable, and the reception he received so enthusiastic, that it is now planned to continue the exhibitions on succeeding Sundays at different places.

Three popular resorts are now being considered. You may, by watching the daily AMERICAN this week, know where next Saturday's or Sunday's flights will be held.

To get an expert's-story of that flight, the AMERICAN went to Webster himself and he has written the story for you here.

Remember, the daily AMERICAN will tell you where you may see him next week. Meanwhile, read his story of his flight.

By CLIFFORD WEBSTER.

Never in my career have I been against such discouraging conditions as those I encountered in the Boston AMERICAN flight Sunday afternoon from Marblehead to Nantasket Beach. The only condition that favored me at all was the flight wind that prevailed.

As I reached Hull I felt a stinging on my face and found that it was raining. The machine was going sixty miles an hour and the rain drops struck me like heavy hail. I was forced to turn my head sideways or downwards to shield my face from the sharp stings. All this time it had not been raining below me.

As I approached Nantasket I descended a bit and started distributing Boston AMERICAN cards to the people below. When I distributed all the cards under the seat I reached back in the box for more. I had to reach as far as possible for the cards and, while doing this, was so forced to change my position that the machine had to balance itself.

I then landed in the water a half-mile from the shore and then learned that it had just begun to rain below. I then rose and passed over the beach four times and over Paragon Park twice. When the rain fell I landed again and a motor boat gave me a rope to prevent the machine from floating out too far.

I then gave an exhibition of turns and swoops and landed ahead of the wind. I landed close to the surf line and took on a Boston AMERICAN photographer. I then went to close over the beach so that my passenger could snap pictures and landed with a steep volplane with a long skim parallel to the beach close into shore.

I again ascended and headed for Lawley's yacht basin, where I moored the machine. For the next few days I will experiment at Squantum with a skid and wheel landing gear. I had a great trip from Marblehead and learned many interesting things during the flight.

15,000 Methods to Honor Lee's Memory

More than 15,000 Methodists from all over New England are expected to be present on Boston Common, November 13, at the anniversary of Rev. Jesse Lee who was the first Methodist minister to preach there. Rev. H. B. Dickson has opened his headquarters at No. 581 Boylston street. Bishop Hamilton, Rev. Dr. Dillon Bronson and other notables will attend.

Lowell Man Seeks Father Lost Since '05

First Foreign Corn Arrives in Boston

One hundred thousand bushels of corn from South American ports were unloaded today from the steamship "Asuncion de Larrinaga" at the Hoosac Tunnel Docks. This is the first foreign corn to be landed in Boston and was selling today f. o. b. seventy-five cents a bushel against eighty-one cents for Western corn. It was consigned to A. L. Martucci, Boston Chamber of Commerce.

SECOND TRIAL OF WAKEFIELD WOMAN BEGINS

NEW HAVEN, Ct., July 14.—Before Judge Reed in the Criminal Superior Court today Mrs. Bessie J. Wakefield, formerly of Bristol, began her second fight for her life, when the task of selecting a jury for her trial on a charge of first degree murder, in aiding and abetting James Plew in the murder of her husband, William O. Wakefield, one June 23, 1913, was begun.

Plew, who actually accomplished the brutal murder of Wakefield, whose body was found in the woods near Cheshire, Ct., was hanged on March 4 last for the crime, having admitted his guilt. Mrs. Wakefield was sentenced to die at the same time, but her appeal automatically stayed the execution. Mrs. Wakefield was in a highly nervous state when she was brought from the local jail to the courtroom, and her attorneys feared that she might not be able to stand the strain of the trial, as she has been ill recently. She was defended by Attorneys Thomas F. Devine and Charles W. Bauhes of Waterbury, the latter having recently become associated as counsel for the defense through the efforts of Mrs. W. J. Hickensderfer, a wealthy Stamford woman, who has taken an active interest in the case of Mrs. Wakefield.

GIRL FLEES 'BURGLARS' BY SHEET ROPE

Miss Ingeborg Johnson, twenty-three, a domestic, who has only been in this country a few months, in trying to escape from what she thought were burglars in the home of H. B. Shepard at No. 20 Clark road, Brookline, climbed down a rope of bedclothes from the third story, fell through the glass roof of a conservatory and was taken to the Massachusetts General Hospital, early today with a broken arm and numerous minor injuries.

The police failed to find any trace of burglars in the house.

55,000 Threaten Railroad Strike

CHICAGO, July 14.—A strike of 55,000 engineman and firemen employed on ninety-eight railroads operating west of Chicago, which would tie up approximately 140,000 miles of railroad, is threatened today. About 90 per cent. of the men have already voted to strike unless their demands are granted. Representatives of the engineers' brotherhood are expected to present their strike ultimatum to the railroad managers today.

Russia Suffers from Heat Wave

ST. PETERSBURG, July 14.—Russia is suffering from the most severe heat wave which has visited the empire in half a century. Whole forests are aflame. Peat beds on the moors are burning and many villages have been wiped out.

Predict Senate Will Confirm Jones

WASHINGTON, July 14.—White House officials today predicted that Thomas B. Jones, nominated for the Federal reserve board, would be confirmed by the Senate by a majority of from 4 to 10 votes.

Three Things Necessary in Treating Skin Diseases

Cadum, the well-known remedy for Eczema, pimples and other skin troubles, does three things. It stops the itching, it forms a tight covering over the sore places on the skin, thus excluding air and water, and it sets up the healing process. In many instances you can see and feel a distinct improvement in less than twenty-four hours. Cadum is such a good remedy that a list of each ingredient is contained in a printed upon each box. People who buy a remedy are entitled to know what it is made of, so they can talk to their doctor about it if they desire. Secret remedies are going out of fashion, and Cadum was among the first to show just what it is made of. Get a 16c box of your druggist and try it. The 25c size contains nearly four times as much as the 16c size.

Filene's

SALEM RELIEF FUND.
A desk has been placed on our Street Floor for receipt of contributions, which will be turned over to the Treasurer of the Relief Fund.

1.—Some four thousand carefully planned summer cotton and tub-silk waists have uncommonly low prices.

2.—Both the Women's and Misses' Shops show, at remarkable prices, copies of Paris models, chosen by us, that you will find nowhere else.

3.—Both the Women's and Misses' Shops have, for this sale, a plentiful supply of white crepe de chine waists that are hard to get and much wanted.

4.—In both the Women's and Misses' Shops the sale includes waists of the new tailored variety with new long set-in sleeves and new higher necks.

5.—While this is essentially a sale of WHITE waists—the Women's shop offers as well colored handkerchief linens; the Misses' shop, colored "Middies."

6.—Included are extra large waists (46 and 48).

BRAVES PROVE WONDER TEAM TO CARDINALS AFTER TWO STRAIGHT WINS

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

GALLANT IS MADE 10-7 FAVORITE OVER BALDWIN FOR TITLE BOUT TONIGHT

GILL GALLANT FAVORITE OVER MATTY BALDWIN

By JACK CONWAY.

THE New England lightweight championship will hang in the balance when Matty Baldwin and Gilbert Gallant clash in a twelve-round bout at the At's A. A. tonight. Gallant is the title holder, and the husky Chelsea youth is confident that he will retain his ring honors. Baldwin held the championship for many years, but was beaten by Eddie Murphy last year. Murphy was then bested by Gallant.

Gallant rules a 10 to 7 favorite in the betting, and the wise men believe that he will conquer the veteran Charlestown fighter. Gallant himself is confidence personified, and in discussing tonight's bout said:

"I am certain that I will win from Baldwin. He defeated me a year ago, but I have improved a great deal since then. I am younger, stronger and faster than Matty and will start after him in the opening round. If he is not at his very best he will receive a severe setback. I intend to land a knockout punch if possible."

GALLANT has been training at a Chelsea gymnasium and is in grand condition. He did not experience any difficulty in reducing to 135 pounds, the weight the boys agreed to make for the match, and he should enter the ring with his fight under his belt as it were.

THE Chelsea youth would rather win from Baldwin than any other boxer in the East. It will be remembered that Matty and Gallant were at one time both under the management of Alec McLean. Baldwin broke away from the McLean "stable," but Gallant remained under the management of the Revere man. A contest was then arranged between the two boys and Baldwin was awarded the decision at the end of twelve hard rounds of fighting. Gallant believes he was entitled to at least a draw in that bout and claims he will get revenge this evening.

THERE is little need to devote a great deal of space to the deeds of Baldwin. He is the veteran of the New England lightweights and has clashed with the majority of the world's leading lightweights. He has a decision to his credit over Willie Ritchie, while he gave Leach Cross one of the hardest battles of his career.

Baldwin's many supporters are of the opinion that his wonderful ring generalship and knowledge of "inside" boxing will enable him to conquer Gallant. They admit that Gallant is one of the best boxers that has been developed in this section of the country for a long time, but they contend that Matty's ring experience will enable him to breeze in a winner.

THE bout should be a hard, fast affair, as both Baldwin and Gallant are boxers of the aggressive type. They keep forcing the fighting in all of the bouts and are fond of a hard mix at close quarters. Consequently the fans will get their "dough's worth" and witness plenty of action tonight, and this is usually what the average ring lover enjoys. The contest has aroused a tremendous amount of interest and a big crowd is sure to be on hand out in order to witness the festivities.

A GOOD preliminary "card" has been arranged. Eddie Flynn, the Lynn lightweight, and Walter Butler of Beachmont will meet in the semi-final bout of eight rounds. These boys are expected to put up a slashing battle. There will be the usual preliminary bouts.

IT seems strange that Georges Carpentier should be made a favorite in the betting for the ten-round bout with "Gunboat" Smith, which will be staged in London Thursday evening. Carpentier is a great fighter, but his ring record is not as impressive as that of the American gunner. Carpentier has lasted most of his fame by defeating Young and both bouts going on a collar and will soon be heard from.

Today's battle with the Napsmouth lad should be a corker, especially if Ditch Leonard, who is due, is sent out to sharpshoot.

The chubby southpaw has the Cleveland number and showed it Saturday when, but in to finish up a game, he fanned four of the six men who faced him in two innings.

The lawyer, Carpentier decides to give the southpaw another day of rest, he still has Bedient, Coumbe and Shores, late of Baltimore, to call on.

Vean Gregg may be worked by the Naps, as he has always been a tough nut for the Carrigans to crack. The way the present enemy is fielding these days though, the best pitching in the world won't do them a whole lot of good.

ED WALSH BACK.

Apart from a Boston view point, the most interesting thing that happened in the A. L. yesterday was the return of Ed Walsh to the shutout role.

The big chap had all his old stuff on tap and from what he displayed against the Yanks must be considered from now on as a very material addition to the already strong White Sox corps of hurlers.

The kettle keeps a-boiling so hard in the race that it threatens every day now to boil over and spill a few teams down the line.

It is doubtful if ever there has been a fight where so many clubs kept so closely bunched for such a long time. For two full weeks now, the six up top have never been more than six games apart.

Here's the way they stand today:

	W.	L.	Behind leader.
Athletics	45	32
Washington	43	35	2½ games
Detroit	44	37	3 games
Chicago	42	36	3½ games
Boston	42	38	4½ games
St. Louis	42	38	4½ games

While this race has naturally been absorbing most of the interest in this particular part of the world, the National circuit also has a very merry little war of its own on, with Chicago pursuing New York in the big feature act.

But the Cards and the Phillies, in fact, every team in the circuit right down to the Braves, who are only 10½ games back of the Giants, are not out of it yet.

BRAVES SHOW UP WELL.

The Braves have been working well on the road and the display of their goods in Chicago and St. Louis has caused no end of comment and wonder as to why they occupy the seat of the lowly.

Four things is sure. If they can keep to their knitting they will soon be away from the anchor place.

At all events they already have the satisfaction of having let a lot of wind out of a couple of rapidly swelling pennant booms in the two Western cities they have thus far made on their cruise.

RED SOX AGAIN IN LINE FOR AN HONOR BERTH

By NICK FLATLEY.

With another shot today at the somewhat discouraged Cleveland outfit, the Red Sox have one more good chance to keep moving up in the American League free-for-all. Now they're only four and a half games back of the Macks. The old half-game climb that has marked their work lately went on the books yesterday afternoon, mostly through the efficiency of Mr. Collins, who southpawed the Naps into a shutout, with but two hits to decorate it.

As was the case Saturday, the Senators were the only other team of the scrambling top sextet to move up along with the Carrigans. They called the Peril of the Potomac to the ramparts and he repulsed the Tigers in most commendable fashion.

Result, his team now perches in second place just two and a half to the bad of the leaders.

CRIPPLES BACK IN LINE UP.

The Sox, now tied again with the Browns at the fifth balmer, are only a small matter of two games shy of the Senatorial position. As they have a couple more to settle with the cellar champs, their present strategic position is as good as it ever has been.

Especially encouraging too is the fact that the cripples have now for the most part shaken the crutches and liniment.

Duffy Lewis introduced himself to a full game yesterday and looked no worse for the wear and Harry Hooper expects to follow suit this afternoon.

Speaker's bad ankle is beginning to assume its wonted size and feeling, so the outfield, about half the Red Sox team, can be looked to for results.

LEONARD VS. VEAN GREGG.

Joe Wood will be right for the Tigers, while Rankin Johnson whose funny bone was tickled rather harshly a couple of days ago, is again able to wig and both hands putting on a collar and will soon be heard from.

Today's battle with the Naps should be grabbed off by the fans, especially if Ditch Leonard, who is due, is sent out to sharpshoot.

The chubby southpaw has the Cleveland number and showed it Saturday when, but in to finish up a game, he fanned four of the six men who faced him in two innings.

The lawyer, Carpentier decides to give the southpaw another day of rest, he still has Bedient, Coumbe and Shores, late of Baltimore, to call on.

Rain Holds Up Clay Tennis Tournament

CINCINNATI, July 14.—Rain held up the play in the fifth annual clay court tennis championship tournament on the courts of the Cincinnati Golf Club.

The principal event was the appearance on the courts of Miss Mary Browne of California, national champion in ladies' singles. Miss Browne won the first set from Miss Mary Kemper of Circleville, 6 to 3, after which the matches were held up.

Rain Holds Up Game.

PHILADELPHIA, July 14.—Darkness, due to low hanging clouds, delayed the Philadelphia-St. Louis American League game here at the end of the third inning, and rain caused a postponement after the visitors' half of the fourth inning. The score at that time was tied at 1 to 1.

JESS WILLARD, who is now in England, where he will probably meet a challenger at whose name Willard is so far the biggest piece of fighting machinery in captivity. He is said to be six inches in height and weighs close to 230 pounds.

BRAVES IN LINE FOR 3 STRAIGHT OVER THE CARDS

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 14.—With two games to the good, the Braves went after the Cards today to make it three straight. Stallings will use Hess or Tyler, while Harry Sallee probably will carve for the Cards.

When it comes to premier short stops, no one in major league today has anything on Rabbit Maranville. This mite of a lad is a whole ball club in himself.

He is just the sort who could make the Cardinals a real factor for the fifth National League pennant with the Giants and he is going to haul the Braves out of last place within the next fortnight.

Although the Braves won the opening game from the Cardinals Sunday, without Maranville, their team play, their defense wasn't perfect, but in the second game yesterday, with the Rabbit back in the game, the Braves outfought and outgamed their rivals.

It really was Maranville who won the game. He punched out three hits, two doubles; drove in one run; scored three others and at short he was a marvel.

One play in particular saved the game. That was in the ninth inning and one which probably was one of the greatest catches ever seen in St. Louis.

The Braves had a six to five lead on the Cardinals. One was out when Miller swung a line drive over the middle sack.

Maranville ran, then took a dive and grabbed the ball with his gloved hand. He rolled and rolled out into right field, but the ball stuck in his glove.

Cozy Dolan followed with a line drive to center field for a home run. Had Rabbit missed Miller's liner Dolan's home run would have won the game. As it was, the homer only tied it and in the twelfth inning a home run by Dugey won it.

Camp Praises Work of Harvard Crew

Walter Camp of Yale, who has just returned from the Cleveland-Hamburg-American line from abroad, spoke with enthusiasm of the performance by the Union Boat Club and Harvard crews in the final at Henley.

"It was magnificent," he said, "I think that the Union Boat Club crew would have given a better account of itself but for its previous grueling race with the Germans. I feel positive, which the Americans won by less than half a length, both crews deserve the greatest credit for their fine work."

Stosh Is Winner in Bout with Dyson

NEW YORK, July 14.—Dick Stosh of Cleveland, former National A. A. champion, outpointed Young Dyson of Providence, R. I., in a ten-round bout that went the limit before a capacity house at the Olympic A. C.

BIG BIKE RACE FOR WALTHOUR

RACING PROGRAM.

Motor-paced race, thirty miles—Moran, Wiley, Carman, Mitten.

Tandem races—South Boston vs. Everett, Logan and McPartland vs. Connolly and Rollins.

Special sprint match—Mike the Barber and Silvio Pecci.

Two-mile amateur handicap—Australian pursuit race for professionals, five-mile open for amateurs, one-mile invitation for amateurs and one-mile professional.

George Wiley, middle distance bike champion of America, who is substituting for Bobby Walthour in the four-cornered thirty-mile motor-paced race at the Revere Cycle track tonight, in which Clarence Carman, Jimmy Moran and Worth Mitten will be the other riders, has work cut out for him if he carries out the Georgia flyer's plans.

Wiley was painfully injured at the Brighton Beach Motordrome Sunday.

The rest of the card will be the same as originally scheduled for last Saturday night, including a tandem race between teams composed of Patsy Logan and Hugh McPartland and Dennis Connolly and Rollins, and a match sprint race between Mike the Barber and Silvio Pecci. The rain checks given out on Saturday are good for tonight.

Wiley should prove a capable substitute for Walthour, as the little champion is quickly rounding into his best form. Carman is going like a whirlwind once again, while Mitten, who rides the first race at Revere this season tonight, expects to be in the chase from the start.

French Tennis Stars Win Over English

WIMBLEDON, July 14.—France was the winner of the doubles match against Great Britain in the preliminary competition for the Dwight F. Davis international lawn tennis trophy.

Max Decugis and Max Germot represented France, and they defeated R. Roper Barrett and T. M. Mavrogordato, the English pair, by 6—2, 5—7, 7—5, 6—4. The English team on Saturday won the first two singles matches.

Leading Tennis Players Have Off Day in Big Matches

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 14.—All the leading players who have hopes of becoming members of the Davis Cup team suffered from a reversal of form in the first round of the matches in the test tournament for the international team men on the courts of the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club.

William M. Johnson, hailed as the successor to McLoughlin, who arrived from California a few days ago, was hooked over by Robert Leroy, 7—5, 2—6, 6—4.

R. Norris Williams, 2d, who performed so effectively with McLaughlin in winning the trophy last year, narrowly escaped losing to Walter M. Hall, winning by the narrow margin of 7—5, 7—5.

Another surprise was the defeat of H. H. Hackett, captain of the 1912 team, whose weak volleys were smothered by L. E. Mahan, at 6—1, 5—3, retired. R. Lindley Murray, the other Californian, got by with a default.

Never Such Crowds in Our Store Before

The public's response to our Fifth Semi-Annual 11c. Sale is overwhelming.

While we made every possible preparation, the rush was so great that at times we found our splendid organization taxed to the limit.

Keeping faith with the public was never more emphasized than by the many bargains we offer—and bargains they are, as can be attested to by the thousands who took advantage of our early announcements.

This sale lasts throughout the week, and if you find yourself in the jam, be as patient with the clerks and us as you can—for our whole efforts are being exerted to serve you as quickly and as rightly as human energies can do.

Jack Rowan Refuses to Join Chattanooga

CINCINNATI, July 14.—Harry McCormick's Chattanooga team of the Southern League will have to worry along without the services of Big Jack Rowan, the pitcher, if the latter makes good his threat not to play ball in the South because of the hot weather. Manager Herzog sold the big twirler to the Lookouts, but the deal is held up because of Rowan's refusal to report.

Rowan was affected by the heat during the Spring training trip of the Reds, and he may be sent West.

International Will Finish Out Season

NEW YORK, July 14.—President E. G. Barrow of the International League stated to day that no club in his organization had any idea of quitting, but, on the contrary, that every club will finish the season regardless of any cloud that may arise on the baseball horizon.

It had been rumored that Jack Dunn, owner of the Baltimore Internationals, is ready to quit the field on account of the decrease in patronage in Baltimore, due to the invasion in that city by the Federal League. It also was rumored that the Jersey City club was in difficulties, and that its franchise would be transferred to some other city.

JUDGES TO AID REFEREE IN AWARDING DECISION

By HERBERT TEMPLE.

LONDON, July 14.—A unique plan of selecting two judges to assist the referee in choosing the winner on points if the twenty-round fight between Gunboat Smith and Georges Carpentier goes the limit, has been adopted. The referee is Eugene Corri and he will have as judges Joseph Eghoug of New York and Victor Breyer of Paris.

The plan was adopted at the suggestion of Carpentier, who wants to preclude the possibility of such a squabble as followed the Ritchie-Welsh bout.

One of the greatest glove fights in the history of the London prize ring is expected when Smith and Carpentier face each other. The arrival of Carpentier this afternoon was awaited with intense interest by fistic followers to get a look at the Frenchman's physical appearance before registering a bet.

So feverish is the public interest and so great will be the crush at the stadium that the doors will be opened an hour earlier than usual.

WOMEN BUY TICKETS.

Special police arrangements are being made to prevent a scene. The preliminary contests begin at 11 o'clock, and the big fight is expected to begin at 9:30 (4:30 Boston time). It is regarded as certain that the big amphitheatre will be packed to its capacity. The growing interest in prize fighting among fashionable women is expected to result in about 2,000 members of the fair sex being present. There were 1,500 women at the Ritchie-Welsh fight, and neither one of the lightweights is as handsome as the Frenchman.

The deporters are now predicting that Carpentier will adopt Welsh's tactics, and will do everything in his power to see that the contest goes the twenty rounds, secure in his confidence that he will win on points. However, if Carpenter stalls he will be roundly hissed, for the patrons of the manly art are expecting blood and plenty of action.

SMITH IS CONFIDENT.

Smith seemed more confident than ever at his camp at Harrow. "The more I think about Carpentier, the less I believe he can box," said the American heavyweight. "If he beats me he will beat me at my very best."

The whole French colony in London turned out this afternoon to welcome the French pugilist and the characteristic enthusiasm of the French was rampant.

The betting odds were 5 to 1 with Carpentier the favorite today.

GUNBOAT IS CONFIDENT OF WIN OVER GREAT FRENCH RING IDOL

Special Cable to Boston American.

LONDON, July 14.—"If I can't hit this fellow hard enough I shall be the most surprised man in Great Britain." This was Gunboat Smith's pronouncement, delivered from the rubbing table this morning. "I will win," he added with determination backed by obviously perfect condition.

During his training, the hard part of which he ended yesterday, Smith impressed all observers with his lightness of foot and his extraordinarily accurate and powerful punch.

One expert stated that he saw Smith punch the light ball for ten minutes without stopping and that only once did he fail to hit the ball right in the middle, while there was tremendous power behind the blows. Smith chuckled with delight when one of his slams broke the dummy clear in halves.

Smith's greatest danger, it is considered here, lies in his inferior generalship compared with Carpentier. He leaves himself open too much, it is said. Had Carpentier Smith's hammer punch Gunboat's chances would be slight.

Despite the Frenchman's wonderful timing and accurate placing of punches, it is hardly believed that he can succeed where Langford failed. But it is knocking Smith out.

Carpentier has enjoyed a great advantage in the matter of sparring partners, his manager, Descamps, cleverly securing Terry Keller and Tom Kennedy, both pretty good heavyweights, and the latter knowing Gunboat's methods thoroughly.

On the other hand, Smith has had only middleweights to spar with.

FRENCH IDOL TELLS PLANS FOR BIG BOUT

LONDON, July 14.—I hope to beat Gunboat Smith. I believe that I will do it. My intention is to meet Jack Johnson afterwards for the title so envied—champion of the world in all its categories.

This statement was made today by Georges Carpentier, white middleweight and heavyweight champion of Europe, as he unpacked shortly after his arrival here for his fight with Smith at the Olympia on Thursday night for the white heavyweight title.

Has it ever struck you how odd it is to know that you are going to box a man you have never seen? asked Carpentier. I have never seen Smith and he has never seen me and we shall not meet until Thursday night.

I know Smith is a clever boxer and a strong hitter, but I believe he will not be able to touch me because he is less quick than I am.

He has the advantage of me in weight and reach but I am relying on science to overcome him.

I am relying also to a great extent on instinct. Instinct is always strong in a good fighting man. It is marked in Jack Johnson and I believe that I have enough of it to help me.

I am a great believer in massage and my good attendant Cristhil has a preparation of his own which puts new life into me.

From what I have been told I do not believe that Smith is an infighter and I have always felt most at ease before a fighter who keeps his opponents at arms length.

I am going to give the English people the best that is in me and I know that France will not be ashamed of my efforts.

Tossing the Caber Scotch Picnic Event

For the first time in America amateurs will toss the caber in competition at the Scotch picnic at Caledonian Grove on Saturday, August 4. The committee in charge of the games has also decided upon the other amateur events. They will be handicap, as follows: 100-yard dash, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, mile run, 16-pound shutput, running high jump and running hop, step and jump. There also will be a three-mile scratch race.

Ames Trophy Won by Mrs. R. P. Parker

PITTSFIELD, July 14.—Mrs. Robert P. Parker, woman golf champion of the Country Club of Pittsfield, won the Ames trophy, presented by Mrs. Reginald M. Ames, defeating Miss Theodora Abbe of Springfield, 3 up and 2 to play, in the 25-hole final.

Boston Teams Win Tennis Title Games

UTICA, N. Y., July 14.—In the first round play for the Central New York tennis championship on the Yahnundasis Golf Club courts here, E. H. Whitney, Longwood Cricket Club, Boston, defeated Paul Sheldon, Hartford, Ct., Golf Club, in the best match, 6—3, 9—7. Harry Greenough, Boston, won from Charles Eaton, Harvard University, 6—1, 6—0.

H. L. Hahn and E. R. McCormick, the Californian cracks, drew byes in the first round.

M'Donald Given Hamilton's Place

SPRINGFIELD, July 14.—Simon A. McDonald, former manager of the Hartford Club, has been appointed manager of the Springfield Eastern Association Club to succeed Billy Hamilton, who was dropped. McDonald will also serve as a catcher. Hamilton was dropped because the team had not been a winner.

YACHT RACING CREWS GIVEN SHORT LAY OFF

By DUNCAN CURRY.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 14.—After the cup yachts had drifted around for five hours yesterday the New York Yacht Club regatta committee called the race off, as there was not the slightest chance of any of the boats finishing inside the time limit of six hours.

This is the first time one of the yachts has failed to cover the course within the time limit since cup candidates began racing on June 2.

When the race was declared off the Resolute had just rounded the second mark five minutes fifty-five seconds ahead of the Vanitie, which in turn, led the Defiance by nearly three-quarters of a mile.

Briefly, it had taken the Resolute four hours, forty minutes, twenty-eight seconds to cover twenty miles, and in the light air there was not the slightest chance of the Resolute finishing the remaining ten miles anywhere near inside the time limit.

When the starting signal sounded at 12:15 the Vanitie led the other two boats over the line, crossing at 12:15:10, with the Resolute two seconds behind her to windward, while the Defiance brought up the rear at 12:15:29.

All three of the yachts did a lot of short tacking and at one time or another every one of them had the lead for a few seconds.

As there was not strength to the breeze, it took the Resolute over three hours to cover the ten miles to the second mark, and the committee finally decided to call the race off.

There was very little in yesterday's contest that was of value to the American cup committee, and as the weather seemed likely to continue soft, and the owners and crews anxious of two days for business and rest, the contest scheduled for this morrow was called off.

The next race will be on Thursday under the direction of the Newport Yacht Racing Association.

Big Maranville Offer.

Stallings Thinks It a Joke.

Cards Would Trade 4.

Rabbit Maranville is the big noise with the western teams, so big, in fact, that President Britton at the Cards offered four men for the Boston Star, including Pitcher Robinson, the highly touted southpaw, but Stallings refused to even listen to the offer.

"If I let the Rabbit go, I might just as well lock the Walpole street gates," said Stallings. Britton is firmly convinced that with Maranville he could win the pennant.

Title Game Funds for Fire Victims

BROCKTON, July 14.—The local Colonial League ball park has been tendered free to the Tauntons and Torreys in their game tomorrow to decide the championship of the Bay State Trolley League. The two teams were tied when the season came to a close a week ago. The entire proceeds of the game will be sent to Salem for the benefit of the fire sufferers.

Dooin Sends Three Recruits to Minors

PHILADELPHIA, July 14.—Three of Manager Dooin's young recruits have been chased to the minors. Milton Reed, the utility infielder, was released to Columbus, American Association, while "Hap" Hogan, the Villa Nova College phenom, and Grover Cleveland Alexander's brother, go to Syracuse, New York State League.

Van's father, on a psychological vacation from Wall Street, umpired yesterday's game between the Giants and the Hinkies. Van pitched for the Giants. Although he was much to the roquefort his side won. The attendance at yesterday's game was the largest so far this season, but the lack of enthusiasm was very noticeable. Van's father paid the admission of every local fan into the grounds and besides, after the game, every one got an ice cream cone with his compliments.

Their Married Life

Nora Burns Her Arm and Helen Has an Exciting Time Getting a Doctor

HELEN looked up from the book she was reading as the kitchen door closed with a bang. At the same time there was a noise as of something falling, and the next minute Nora stood in the doorway, her apron wrapped around her arm and her lips white and trembling.

Why Nora, what is it?" as the girl stood silent. And then noticing the hand wrapped up in the apron, "You've hurt yourself; let me see it right away."

Helen unwound the apron from the girl's arm, and then started back.

"Nora, you've burned yourself horribly; how did you do it?" The girl's arm was burned badly from the wrist to the elbow; already the skin had blistered and was falling away in places. It was the kind of a burn that needed medical attention immediately to prevent a terrible scar. And so far Nora had not spoken a word.

"Come into the bathroom, Nora, and I'll put something on it that may make it feel a little better. Well have the doctor here as soon as I can telephone for him."

Nora followed Helen into the bathroom, and while Helen rummaged around in the little medicine chest for some anti-burn ointment that she knew was good for burns, Nora staggered and would have fallen had not Helen pushed her down into a chair.

"You poor thing," she said, "how did you do it," Nora, or would you rather not talk?"

HOW IT HAPPENED

Nora smiled faintly. "The iard that was left from the doughnuts. I was pouring it into a bowl, and it tipped up suddenly."

Helen nodded sympathetically. She was examining the arm, which was in a truly dreadful condition. There was no possibility of wiping the grease away, for the skin was too badly burned, so Helen smeared on the ointment and wound the gauze around it loosely. Then she ran into the telephone, conscious that it might have been better to do that in the first place, and called up the doctor, who had always been called on whenever they had needed him.

"Hlank 1986. Yes, Central. Hurry, please, oh, no, this is a private wire, certainly."

Would they never answer! "Hello. Hello! Can you hurry that number, please, Central. Yes, I know. Yes, Dr. Bentley. Hello! Is this Hlank 1965? Yes, I do. Bentley there? Just gone! Oh, dear! No. Nothing, thank you, goodby."

Helen hung up the receiver, wondering what she had better do.

"Does it hurt very badly now, Nora?" she called, and then as Nora did not answer she rushed into the bathroom to find the girl had fainted away. There must be some one she could get to dress the arm. There was a nurse doctor in one of the apartments downstairs—she would try him.

Rushing back to the telephone she rang up the boy downstairs.

"Is there a doctor in this building? Yes, Dr. Marshall? Please connect me with his apartments."

The boy, conscious of the fright in Helen's voice, for once attended to his business, and a second later a man's voice answered Helen's frightened Hello.

"Yes, this is Dr. Marshall."

A NEW DOCTOR

"This is Mrs. Curtis. Could you come up immediately, doctor? My maid has burned her arm. Yes, we are on the fourth floor. Thank you so much." There was a click as the man hung up the receiver, and Helen turned thankfully away. Then she hurried over to the sideboard and poured out a little glass full of white key, which she forced down Nora's white lips. In a moment the head of the apartment rang, and Helen ushered in a tall, very good-looking young man, who bowed to her professionally and then looked around inquiringly for the patient.

"She is in the bathroom, doctor. She has fainted once, although I tried to do the best I could for her till I could get some one."

Helen followed the doctor into the bathroom and watched him as he began unwinding the bandage from the girl's arm. The schick had partly revived Nora, and again she smiled faintly as Helen bent over her pitifully.

"How dog it feel now, Nora?"

"It hurts pretty bad, ma'am."

The doctor said nothing and Helen watched him interestedly as he ran some warm water into the basin and dropped in a couple of the tablets which dissolved very quickly.

"Put your arm in the water," he said, finally, and as Nora obeyed he began spreading some brown salve on a fresh bandage.

"This will set her up all right," he said, turning to Helen. "It ought to be dressed a couple of times, but I don't think she'll even have a scar. "How does it feel now?" as he carefully wrapped the gauze around Nora's arm. "Much better. I thought so! I'll come up tomorrow, or she can come down to my office, but she'd better not use her arm for a day or so."

Nora walked slowly out into the kitchen, as Helen showed the doctor to the door.

"Thank you so much for coming right up, doctor. I was so frightened, and I knew it was too bad a burn for me to dress permanently."

"You did very well," said he laughed a nice boyish laugh. "Your prompt dressing took a lot of the inflammation out of the arm." And then with a bow he was gone.

Helen hurried back into the kitchen and found Nora on her knees before the icebox, getting out some things to prepare for dinner. Her right hand was fastened up in a sling to prevent her using it, and she was using her left hand rather clumsily.

A BRAVE GIRL

"Why, Nora, do you think I'm going to have you working around after a bad burn like that? You get right up and sit here in the kitchen chair while I get dinner ready."

"But I feel fine now, Mrs. Curtis," Nora protested, "and I can use my left hand all right." But she sank back thankfully into the chair that Helen pulled forward, while Helen picked up some of the dishes from the floor and began making arrangements for Warren's dinner.

"I'm glad I had a steak sent in for this evening, Nora; it's the easiest thing in the world to cook. Let's see; that goes into the broiler, doesn't it?"

"Yes, ma'am, but I never start the fire under it until Mr. Curtis comes in. Then it's always done just right. Mr. Curtis likes his meats rare."

"All right. I'll just put it in the broiler and have it ready, and then I'll light the gas later. I guess I'll cream some potatoes, and we'll warm those carrots up for tonight. Is there any lettuce in the icebox? Oh, yes. I'll slice some tomatoes and make some mayonnaise. I know you were going to have fruit salad, Nora, but we won't bother tonight. And we'll have the doughnuts and some canned fruit for dessert. Why, what's this? Oh, Nora, did you break some of these plates?"

"Yes, ma'am," admitted Nora, meekly, nursing her wounded arm. "It was on the table when I burned my arm and the pain was so bad I couldn't see for a minute, and I just shoved it off before I knew what I was doing."

Helen hesitated, she hated to scold Nora for anything right now, but the plate had been an expensive one, one of her best dinner set, and she had told Nora repeatedly to be very careful about leaving any of the set around the kitchen, where they might be broken.

A CLEVER REPORT

"But what was the plate doing there? I told you not to leave those dishes around the kitchen, Nora, don't you remember?"

"Yes, ma'am," said Nora again, "but I was just going to carry some dough nuts in to you, and they do look so pretty on those plates."

Helen had to smile at the girl's artfulness.

"What about the cake plates, we have two or three that are very much like those one."

"I know, ma'am, but I was in a hurry, and they were all in the china closet. I'm sorry, ma'am," and Nora looked up at Helen with a real apology in her honest eyes.

"Well, we won't say anything more about it this time, Nora. I'll try to match the plate downtown. But remember after this not to use the china unless I tell you to. Now I guess everything is about ready. Don't bother about anything, Nora. I'll come out and light the gas under the broiler as soon as Mr. Curtis comes in."

Planking

A NEW SPORT MADE POSSIBLE BY THE MOTOR BOAT

"Planking" consists of being towed through the waters on a plank, and you cannot go slowly, for if the towing craft does not go eight miles an hour the plank will sink.

Do You Know That—

M. Franz Reichel, the sporting journalist who referees the chief fights in France, and who judged the recent Carpentier-Lavette contest, has devised a new kind of chart for the use of judges in boxing matches. It is in the form of a "graph." The points are mapped out on squared paper at the end of each round, and the "curve" connecting them gives the verdict to the man on whose side of the central line it mainly lies.

Out of 500 voters on the register at Krut, in Upper Silesia, only six bear the name of Arnold, and of these thirty-seven are called Jules. To distinguish one from another the Arnolds have been ordered to furnish the Municipal Council with exact particulars as to their personal characteristics, and in future the register will contain such entries as Jules Arnold the fat, Jules Arnold the long-nosed, and so on.

Lieutenant-General Sir R. S. S. Baden-Powell of the British army has given to the museum of the Royal United Service Institution in Whitehall a very interesting, if rather gruesome, relic of the Ashanti expedition of 1896. It is the brass bowl used to receive the heads of the unfortunate victims of King Prempeh. The bowl, which resembles an ordinary bathtub in appearance and size, is about five feet in diameter. On the rim are four small lions, rather elaborately modelled, and a number of skulls evidently intended as an ornamentation. There is a gap in the continuity of the series, which leaves just a space to the victim to insert his head preparatory to execution.

The latest thing in foot-warmers is an electric mat for use in motor cars. It is formed of four pads of asbestos, covered with canvas and enclosed in a plush bag. The heat is sent from a dynamo attached to the engine. The device is intended for the use of ladies who are wearing light shoes. It is expected that the idea will be adopted and the same principle of heating extended to the back and seat cushions of cars.

Mr. Joseph von Madarasz, a Hungarian, who has entered his one hundred and first year, is the oldest parliamentarian in the world. "Uncle Joseph," as he is familiarly called, was elected a deputy of the Presburg Diet in 1832. Until four years ago, when he retired, the electors of his constituency have never failed to return him.

Sisterly Advice

"YOU women certainly are the limit" said the very young man to his married sister.

There were disdain, commiseration and suffering in his tone.

"Now, see here, Johnny," began his married sister.

"Don't call me that!" he protested. "Don't you realize that I'm grown up?"

"Usually not," declared his married sister promptly. "You've got to show me. And just now I am more than ever impressed with your general juvenile effect—and you persist in the same notion that you're going to marry that girl."

"There you go!" cried the very young man. "It isn't what you say, but the way you say it! I'd rather hear most people call dance than hear you say 'that girl'. I don't see why you should go out of your way to slam Jessie Binks—she's the prettiest thing that ever stepped, and never just plain jealous, that's all I know you women!' Why, her—"

"Oh, I know all about her eyes!" declared his married sister with some coldness.

MORE KNOCKS

"Did you ever stop to think," went on Johnny's sister, "that you might be tired of seeing that cunning little mug of Jessie's three hundred and fifty-five breakfasts a year—I refer to her habit of ducking her head and peering up through her lashes as though she were crouched behind a pile of brushwood? She—"

"You're just jealous!" persisted the very young man. "I never saw anything curl the way her hair does round her ears."

"Electric curling iron," pronounced his married sister ruthlessly. "Maybe after she had you safely married she'll even put 'em up on kid curlers. Did you ever see a lovely woman with her hair done up on kid curlers, Johnny? I thought not—there are many awful sights in store for you, as spared you! You know she paints, of course."

The very young man gave a good imitation of apoplexy. "Well, of all the catty things!" he finally gasped. "Just because she has a glorious complexion you have to"—

"My child," his sister interrupted, with great firmness, "you are even worse than I supposed! I had no idea your trusting innocence extended so far! Jessie Binks rouges her cheek and the tips of her ears and pencils her brows and puts red on her lips and buys enough powder to do the family baking every week. It's wonderful! And then you—well, dear, Johnny—I'm glad I rubbed you when I did. Of course, it's no other, because most women paint these days, only I won't have her putting over that nature's own coloring on you! Just you get her to a good strong light the next time you are out and notice! Can she cook?"

"How do I know?" growled her brother, indignantly. "Do you suppose I call on a young woman and gurgle 'food evening' Can you bake pies?"

"Given so, it would be better than to install a little fairy in your home who thinks meals walk out to the table by themselves. How is Jessie Binks going to keep house for you wearing rose color creme de chine negligees that cost $50—I saw her in one the other day. You can't have only about one-half or I see very, of a maid at your present salary, you know! Imagine Jessie scrubbing the kitchen sink!—"

"Here!" howled the very young man. "Do you think I am going to make a slave of my wife? Why, she has a wonderfully economical head. You ought to see the blouse she made out of an old evening dress! It was fine!"

WHAT IT COST

"The evening dress cost $85 to be gin with," said his married sister cruelly. "And I wouldn't have worn the blouse to market in! The stitches were so large that the mother darns all her stockings and washes out all her lace dewnies because Jessie doesn't know how to manicure! Her father staves himself to death and her mother goes with out clothes just to keep meals in the family when Jessie demands new dresses. Oh, I hear all these things! And she has a temper. She—"

"I won't hear another word," said the very young man, firmly. "I won't hear you malign a sweet, pretty little creature, with a face like an angel! Why, her voice is like music! I—"

"Hun along," said his married sister, abruptly. "I suppose your character needs the chastisement and development it's going to get! Since too knowing to have you, anyway. So don't come around later to weep on my shoulder!"

"Anyhow," remarked the very young man, in a more subdued tone, "we aren't really engaged yet."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU ARE OLD ENOUGH

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-two and in love with a girl of eighteen, who loves me. We have been close friends three years, but I had to leave her on account of my parents' objections. They claimed I was too young to keep company with a girl. I am again anxious to become friends with her, but my parents are still objecting to it.

STEADY READER.

You are old enough to know your own mind, and your fidelity to the girl proves this is more than a passing fancy.

Impress this on your parents' minds. I am quite sure your sincerity will win them over.

NEITHER

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am eighteen and in love with a boy one year older. He he seems not to show his love for me, as he goes out with other girls. But there is another boy that shows his love for me and I like him also. Please advise me who to care for.

BRIGHT EYES.

This girl who loves two boys at the same time loves neither very well. I suppose you try to convince yourself that this right man has not yet appeared, but it will be time well spent to wait for him.

"MAMA'S GIRL"

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl, twenty years old, very good looking and a good dresser, but brave no fellow. Did come across a lot of fellows that would like to take me out, but these I could not love, and the boys that I really did like don't like me because I wouldn't go to any cafes and cabaret shows. So now I wish you would give me good advice and let me know if it's wrong for a girl to go to such places, for the boys say it's nothing wrong and always call me mama's girl.

BROWN EYES.

"MAMA'S GIRL" ought to be ashamed a little of honor. If you are the sort of a girl who would rather show herself to be influenced by your mother's wishes than your mother, I see no reason why you should not go to a cafe occasionally or to a cabaret. Of course you must be sure that you are going to a place where you will see nothing, and you must not touch any form of liquor.

WAIT A YEAR

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl of seventeen and in love with a young man two years my senior. This young man has asked me several times to marry him, and being so young, I told him to wait awhile, but he insists that I should get married now. My mother thinks I'm off this fellow, and told me to quit myself.

KITTY.

Talk it over with your fiance and your mother, and if you both agree wait a year. Tell him that since you both are so young, it is wise to prove the strength of your love by a time of waiting. True love, on which some marriage should be based, will stand any period of waiting.

The Only Way

Visitor—And how's the wife this morning, Thompson?

Thompson—Wuss, sir. Doctor, it's him, an' 'e says she moun wear a refrigerator along as this damp weather lasts.

An Unfailing Way to Banish Hairs

Ugly hairy growths can be removed in the privacy of your own home if you get a small original package of delatone and mix into a paste enough of the powder and water to cover the hairy surface. This should be left on the skin about 2 minutes, then removed and the skin washed and every trace of hair will have vanished. No harm or inconvenience can result from this treatment, but be sure you buy real delatone.—ADVERTISEMENT

How Can I Know My True Love?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IN all the old fairy tales Prince Charming comes young upon a wonderful white steed and his happy love knows him at sight. Unfortunately or possibly (according as you prefer to have your pleasures ready made or to work for them) it is not in the least like the fairy tales of love.

Life is full of people who would not know their true love if they met, or of folks who get tired of waiting for love and marry for a home, or for support, or to satisfy a passing fancy. But there are many honest souls who are convinced that they would not know Love if they met him, and they write me in great numbers to ask how they may recognize love when it comes.

Now love of the right sort is based on more than mere attraction between the sexes. Love is a supreme longing of one individual for another. But that longing is to share all the realties of life and not emotion alone.

The person you truly love is the one with whom you long to share all the good that comes to you, and whom you desire to protect from any evil that threatens them.

Love should be based on companionship, mental congeniality, on respect, trust, tenderness and a loyal belief that life with the object of your affections at your side will be better and happier than it could ever be under any other circumstances.

Love has been called "Friendship without flowers or evil." In reality it is a fine, loyal friendship plus sex attraction.

But congeniality of mind and spirit is fully as important as the longing for emotion and affection that many people confuse with love.

Girls and men alike may know their true loves by four signs that point to love as the basis of the compass point in the four great cardinal directions. The great signs of love are four—and there are four minor ones too.

First there is a longing to be with the object of your attractions. Next there is a desire to save him all pain and to give him all joy. Then comes a great surging faith in his strength and honor. And then comes a longing to be in all things fine and unselfish so that you may be worthy of the gift of his love.

And for the four lesser directions on the compass of love there are these four "symptoms of love." A constant state of comparison in which no one else seems to even approach the high standard of your beloved. Next a foolish little tendency to shirk work and fall a-dreaming of him. Third a wish to share with him everything that happens, and a feeling that nothing is worth much until he has known or seen it too. And last a great disdain for every one who is not enough to appreciate the dearly beloved.

When you feel all these emotions, and add to them a little self-pity and selfishness and a desire to prove your power by wounding the one part of your attitude, you may be sure that your true love has come.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

THE teacher todd us yesterday that every child shud try hard at all times to attn-ulate the imag-inashun. Imaginashun is prably the most wunderful part of man, sed the teecher. The grate novelists & musishuns & painters & posts has all had grate imaginashuns. I want all you children to rite a story to bring to skool to-morrow, she sed, with sum imaginashun in it.

Last nite I todd Pa, what the teecher sed, & Pa sed Bobbie, yure teecher is rite. She must be a brite woman. I will help you rite a story.

The teecher sed that she wanted each of us to rite our own story, I todd Pa.

"That's the way to talk, Bobbie, sed Ma. Be inde-pendent, like the littel man that you are. Yure father only thinks he can rite a story anyway. Go ahed & rite yure own littel story, & if you need any help after that I will be the one for you to cum to. So Pa dident say any moar, & after I had worked over 1 hour I had my story done. This is what I rote:

ALVA.

Many years ago, in a quaint English village there lived a rich man & his lovly daughter.

Her name was Alva, & she was so butiful that the roses used to not to her when she walkt in the garden, & the birds all sang there morning songs to her. Alva, & the little brook whispered her naim, as it trickled on its way to the blue oshun.

Alva's father was a stern old man, & he lived in a cassel with high walls around it, so that the littel daughter never knew what was in the grate world outside. Onst she climbed up in the tower of her father's cassel & had seen a grate country hee-yond, but her father had skolded her for it, & told her not to him about it that she nevver went up in the tower agayenn.

She never spoak to me of the world, her father sed to her, because it is a bad world, & I do not want that your mother is.

One day Alva was playing near the brook, when a sound. She loooked up & saw a butiful fairy standing on the bank, & she sed:

"Come with me to a world beyond these walls, sed the fairy.

And she had no wings, sed Alva.

I will carry you, sed the fairy, & the fairy flew down & carried Alva far, far away, till she came to a littel house among the hills & there was a lovly woman waiting. It was Alva's mother.

"My child, sed the mother, at last.

My mother, sed Alva, & there they lived happily afterward.

THE END.

That is very good, Bobbie, sed Ma. I no sure yure teecher will like that story.

But you dident say what becoam of the old man, sed Pa. & there aren't any fairies that can fly around with peepul any moar.

That is the part I imagined, I todd Pa.

But what becam of the old gent? sed Pa.

That is sure you will have to do a littel imagin-ashun yurself, he todd Pa. What wud be sum of you without Bobbie & Ma.

Kindly Meant

Murphy experienced the house of Mrs. Malone with a troubled look. He was the bearer of bad news and was feeling very miserable.

He went to the back of the house and found Mrs. Malone at her washtub.

"Mrs. Malone," said he, "I have an unfortunate thing to tell you."

"And what may that be, Joseph Murphy?"

"Your good man, Mrs. Malone, has met with an accident."

"An accident? What kind of accident?"

"Mrs. Malone, he was overcome by the heat at the foundry this morning."

"And is he getting over it?"

"Well, -ma'am, I shouldn't think so. He fell into the furnace!"

BAD OPERATION AVOIDED

By Timely Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Hodgdon, Maine.—"I feel it a duty I owe to all suffering women to tell what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. One year ago I found myself a terrible sufferer. I had pains in both sides and such a soreness I could scarcely straighten up at times. My back ached, I had no appetite and was so nervous I could not sleep, then I would have awful mornings that I could scarcely get around. It seemed almost impossible to move or do a bit of work and I thought I never would be any better until I submitted to an operation. I commenced taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt like a new woman. I had no pains, slept well, had good appetite and could do almost all my own work for a family of four. I shall always feel that I owe my good health to your medicine."—Mrs. EDWARD SOWERS, Hodgdon, Maine.

If you are ill do not drag along until you are worse off than before, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to any of the women whose testimonial letters we are constantly publishing. They will tell you their experience and give you confidence to try the medicine.

Mlle. Lyse Berty, of the Theatre Michel, Paris, says: "I have used all kinds of soaps, but never have used a better one than Savon Cadum."

Poor soap will do more to spoil a good complexion than anything else. Never buy a soap because of its perfume or pretty wrapper. Behind a pungent perfumic there may be impurities and other substances injurious to the skin. Be sure of getting the absolutely pure soap, buy Savon Cadum, the great French Complexion soap. It is made of the very finest materials, and is soothing and healing, being medicated with Cadum Pomade, the famous skin remedy. Savon Cadum beautifies the complexion and is the best preventive against skin infection. At drug and dept stores, 50c.

STOCKS RISE ABOVE THEIR LOW LEVEL

Stocks were irregular this afternoon but the market took had improved somewhat and more leading issues showed gains than losses. Advances in New York included Canadian Pacific 3, Chesapeake & Ohio 1, Southern Pacific 3, Reading 1, Rock Island 1, Atchison 1, Steel 1, Baltimore & Ohio 1, Missouri Pacific 1, New Haven was off 1% at 58%; American Smelting 1, Northern Pacific 1, Union Pacific 1, Great Northern 1, Amalgamated was unchanged. Boston & Maine in the local market was off ¼, at 78¾, others of the list off ¼ to 2. New Haven was off 1¼. Among gains were Olivetti 4, United Fruit ¼, and Western Telephone ¾. Sales in New York on London orders totalled 5000 shares.

STOCKS WAVERED AT START.

When markets opened they were irregular and tone was hesitant and wavering all the morning. Liquidation soon sent prices off. It was scattered and consisted mostly of the selling of small lots. The market averaged narrow during the forenoon and there was no change in this respect around midday. New Haven started steady and soon sold down to 54¼, a new low price. After that it had better support and rallied a little. The steadiness of Missouri Pacific contributed some traders that liquidation of that issue is over for a time. Americans had been lower in London on most instances. Foreigners were less influenced by the Interstate Commerce Commission report that the New Haven system had been managed by corrupt monopolists than had been feared. But that the charges will increase European doubts as to the honesty of American railway management few question.

RATE DECISION STILL DUE.

The New York market was active during the morning. The Boston market was dull. There will be no decision on the Eastern freight rate question today. The New Haven report has added to the apprehension that reads will not get anything like a ruling as was expected a few weeks ago. The strength of California petroleum was due to reports that a new gusher had been struck on its property. Western Maryland preferred sold off more than two points to a new low record.

FINANCIAL NEWS IN BRIEF.

Instead of the cost of food declining it is reported that choice beeves sold in Chicago yesterday at a high record price.

Rainey's African Hunt Films Make Hit at Shubert

The new Paul J. Rainey African hunt pictures made a big hit last night when they were presented for the first time in Boston at the Shubert Theatre. They are even finer than those exhibited by Rainey two years ago at the Park Theatre.

The first pictures are those of the departure, followed about the native boles, the watering places and prominent of the desert and are taken at close range. Clearness of detail is one of the big features throughout the pictures.

The animals' habits, appearance and antics are clearly seen at all times. Especially interesting is a picture taken in the midst of a herd of wild buffalo. This picture, like many others shown, was taken at great risk and keeps the audience thrilled. Other interesting pictures are those of the various species of zebras and gazelles.

A cheetah hunt keeps the audience on edge. In this picture the chase is brought down from a high tree by the poisoned arrow of a native. Other features of the hunt are the shows and the audience really appreciates the skill, nerve, cruelty of getting these marvelous pictures.

For a finale Rainey puts on a lion hunt which is a real thriller from beginning to end. Rainey pictures will be shown here for several weeks.

Nantasket Line.

The fine boats and frequent service of the Nantasket line is making a larger measure of patronage than ever to the finest beach in New England. It is now possible to remain at the Beach as late as 10 in arriving in Boston at 11:45 and this enables people to go to the Beach early in the evening, remain for several hours and return in good time. The attractions at the Beach are well known and the character of the boat service is unexcelled in the United States.

Bass Point and Nahant.

The delightful harbor sail on the Bass Point and Nahant line is attracting thousands during this warm weather. There are many specialties offered by the Relay House and the Bass Point House this season, including musical programme. The dancing in the magnificent ballroom at the end of the ocean pier at Revere, far out over the water, is daily attracting many who take the short trip across the harbor from Bass Point.

Provincetown Trips.

Excursionists on the commodious steamer Emma F. Bradford, of the Cape Cod line, which makes a trip every day to Provincetown and return, are afforded one of the most excellent and complete views of historic Boston Harbor from the broad observation decks, together with the picturesque views of the harbor fortifications and lighthouses and the delightful sea shore scenery of the South Shore.

MINSTRELS AT KEITH'S MERIT HIGH FAVOR WON

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

Sentiment is a fine mouthful of word and it should be used cautiously. It would appear to apply, however, to the Meisteringers' All Star minstrels at B. F. Keith's Theatre.

There are fifty people on the stage, brand new settings, nice black and white costumes with white facings, and last (if not least), the conductor, has a chair on the end of his stick.

There may be more pretentious shows in vaudeville but not this week or this year.

I don't suppose any of the minstrel troupes ever had such a magnificent singing chorus as the Meisteringers, and surely never exercised so many soloists. I never heard a minstrel chorus which did not make harmony hide itself until I listened to this one. The Meistersingers are an unique organization. It would be too much to say that there is to be up on minstrel bones, but two sets of A number one end men are especially engaged to furnish the laughs.

John King, Charlie Mack, and the Bowman Brothers furnish the traditional minstrel duets. The preliminary first part arrangement of old-time plantation songs and modern sentimental ballads with a little rag time on the side. John Thomas, A. C. Steele and Arthur Cole are singing the solos for the Meisteringers.

The Minstrel Show occupies nearly half the evening, but it is not a moment too long.

Ethel Kirk and Billy Fogarty caused much laughter during the vaudeville portion of the evening. Fogarty came on as a Keith stage hand unrolling a strip of carpet. He was so unlike the gentlemanly attendants that usually perform this work that from the old lady in front of me suspected him of being a stranger in the city. He was a very tough map. But he and Ethel Kirk succeeded in making everybody happy. Cunningham and Marlon are surprisingly good tumblers. Jean Bedini and Ray Arthur have an amusing act which consists largely of crockery smashing. The Great Richards is a female impersonator who dances like La Loie Fuller and sings, well, for us not meeting his singing. Boothby and Everleen and Lea Alvarese are also on the bill.

Bowdoin Square.

Violet Mercedes's Merry Maids are still the chief attraction at the Bowdoin Square, but there is a long vaudeville and picture bill in addition to the burlesque show.

ATTRACTIONS AT THE THEATRES

Loew's Orpheum.

"The Light from the Chapel," a very striking dramatic sketch of Creole life in Louisiana, tops the bill at the Orpheum. As performed last night it was extremely thrilling and formed a marked contrast to the ordinary vaudeville features. Jimmy Dayis and Pearl Matthews, from Eddie Foy's "Over the River," made a hit and so did Dave Ferguson, the Three Singing Boys, Alvin and Kennedy and others. The headliner for the last three days will be that sterling Irish comedian, Eugene Emmet, in "The Sunbeam."

Loew's St. James.

"The Sunbeam," a charming little playlet of Old Ireland, performed by Eugene Emmett and his own company, was the feature of the Bingham at the St. James last night. The Hippodrome Four, a quartet of singing comedians, were much appreciated in their sketch "Dinkelspiel's Night Out." Bill Robertson, monologist, pleased, and the Maximoff troupe, a company of seven Russian singers, dancers and instrumentalists, were very effective. The last half of the week will bring "The Light from the Chapel" to top the bill, a playlet of dramatic intensity.

Modern Theatre.

Mary Pickford in "The Eagle's Mate," a new photo-play containing many novel features and a story of tremendous dramatic force, drew a big house to the Modern yesterday. The remainder of the week's bill included a number of selections by Dave Manley, and operatic selections by the Modern Trio and Modern Quartet.

Norumbega.

A strange vaudeville show holds the boards in the theatre at Norumbega this week. In the zoo a baby elk is now attracting. It was born July 4 and has been named George Washington. The Alaska bear is considerable of a comedian. The restaurant, concerts, canoeing and other features make Norumbega always agreeable.

Lexington Park.

The Larry Boyde Musical Comedy company presented a bang-up gilgery show at Lexington Park last night. Funny comedians and pretty girls make things hum in the rustic theatre. The Edna Simmons Ladies' Orchestra is always a feature as are the dansants and other amusements.

Plymouth Trip.

Every day the staunch steamer Betty Alden sails for Plymouth at 10 a. m., being well laden with excursionists. The trip down the South Shore is replete with historic incident. Several hours are allowed ashore in the historic town and the steamer is back in Boston by six in the evening.

Villa Napoli.

During the past few days a large number of people visited the Villa Napoli at Nantasket and enjoyed the attractive features that Manager Di Pesa has provided for this season. There is a high-class cabaret show headed by Bessie Warren, Edna Ayer, Jim Gaither and Mae Murray dancing the daily dansants. Miss Grace Cavanagh will give exhibitions for the remainder of the week.

Paragon Park.

A notable feature in the entertainment at the Palm Garden at Paragon, Nantasket Beach, last night was the amateur dancing contest in the dansant. This innovation proved very popular and every Monday night similar competitions will be held. These contests are to have all and beautiful silver cups are awarded the winners. In the present program this week Miss Elaine Mile Emerie in a sensational trapeze dashing act; La Petite Sisters, cabaret dancers; the Elks Trio and the ten famous Cabaret Girls.

In the free open air circus the program includes Pons and Pons in feats of strength on novelty rings; Marvelous Mathews, the rolling globe equilibrist, and the Vannerson, comedy gymnasts. There is a late boat back to Boston every night at 10:45.

Scollay Square Olympia.

The five-reel photo-play featuring Mary Pickford in "The Eagle's Mate" is one of the chief features of the program at the Olympia this week. The surrounding bill of vaudeville and pictures is up to the usual high standard.

Ralph P. Coburn, district manager of the Maxwell Motor Sales Corporation, has returned home after attending the second annual convention of district managers and salesmen of the Maxwell Motor Company, Inc., Detroit. The visitors were taken through a part of the model "25" factory starting in at the small parts end of the machine shop they went through the motor assembly, gear and cylinder grinding, heat treating, chemical laboratory, cam and crank shaft departments and wound up in the machine shop at the department where motors are tested. The assembly plant, next in order, showed the frame assembly, chassis assembly, body assembly, finish test, motor block test, testing platform and a view of the test track. After luncheon General Works Manager Thompson gave a talk on shop practice. He was followed by the superintendent of service A. E. Richmond, whose subject was "Old and New Service Plans and Policies" Tuesday morning R. E. Bonner, chief engineer—the man who designed the Maxwell "25"—gave a talk on the chassis. Talks were also given by R. A. Miles, chief metallurgist, on "Metallurgy and Heat Treating"; on Roy Dean on "Thermosyphon Cooling System;" and "Advertising Policies" by R. T. Walsh, who discussed the general advertising policy of the company and outlined to the salesmen for the benefit of their agents the most convenient method of ordering supplies of literature and other advertising necessities. Maxwell moving pictures by John Yoke ended the second day.

Wednesday morning the district managers met W. E. Flanders, president of the Maxwell Motor Company, for individual talks. They assembled in a body and a trip was made to Mr. Flanders' farm.

It is not generally known that the Standard Oil Company, the largest producers and distributors of gasoline in the world, ever offered a trophy to be competed for on a basis of fuel economy by stock automobiles, but such is the case, and the prize came by a regulation model, 1908 Premier.

No country produces as many royal blooded motorists as the United States—where royalty is unrecognized.

A large percentage of the motorists you meet are victims of automobility, and are now displaying family crests to which they are entitled.

This condition is evident by a new race which has seized the wealthier classes and is fast spreading to all our owners.

"It is spreading every week," says J. H. MacAlman, local distributor of the Stearns-Knight cars.

Service Must Speak

A store is almost human. It is full of temperament. It affects each customer with the composite personality of its management and staff.

There are stores and stores. There are "grouchy" stores and "smiling" stores. There are flippant stores and dignified stores. And the peculiar thing about each is that the goods or the prices have little to do with the store's temperament. It is the personality of the store that colors and defines the character of the goods from the customer's viewpoint and wins or repels approval.

The temperament or personality of a store is vividly expressed in its face. The face of a store is its advertising. You can judge a store by its advertising the same as you can judge a man by his facial expression.

The service store is the "serving" store. It is also the honest-advertising store. By this, you may know it always—anywhere.

Stores that honestly try to serve their customers best simply can't help advertising. It is the way of human nature that when we have spent the best of our brain power and physical and financial resources in building up something worth while, our enthusiasm bursts forth into publicity. We simply cannot restrain the desire to tell others about it.

In the long run, service is what you pay for, always. The goods, as goods alone, are incidental. Service implies quality, fair prices, safe treatment and honesty in every detail of every transaction.

The Governor and the Legislature Under His Leadership Have Made a Record of Which the People Can Be Proud

When the legislative session is over and the work of changing our laws to make them conform to changing conditions and wise in the new light that comes with increasing years is completed, then is the time when we may begin to judge the character of our Governor's service.

Our Legislature has adjourned, and our representatives have gone home. We can now look back over one of the longest legislative sessions in the history of the Commonwealth and decide whether it was all worth while. We can get a view of Governor Walsh in fair perspective, for the hardest part of his labors are over, if things take their normal course.

A very brief examination of the laws which have been passed will convince any progressive man that the session has been well worth while. Under the leadership of Governor Walsh the business of the State has been more thoroughly reorganized upon accepted principles of business efficiency than in many years before. The Governor believed, and the Legislature was brought to his opinion, that LESS men, giving their entire time to the public service in their departments, could and would render better service to the Commonwealth than MORE men, giving such part of their time as they pleased to the public service and regarding it as incidental to their other occupations. Thus, on the Governor's recommendation, the Directors of the Port of Boston, the State Board of Health and the State Board of Insanity have all been reorganized; their membership reduced in number and given adequate salaries and required to give their entire time to their work.

The State has sixteen thousand citizens in our insane institutions. They will now, for the first time, be under the supervision and protection of three men whose entire time must be devoted to their welfare.

The power of the Board of Health is concentrated into the hands of one man, the salary and power of whose office will be sufficient to permit the State to command the greatest expert of public health which the country contains.

Under the Governor's leadership greater justice has been done to the workingmen of Massachusetts by providing a very substantial increase in the amount of compensation which shall be paid to them for accidents which befall them in the course of their occupation. The maximum time during which they shall be paid for their injuries has been extended from three hundred to five hundred weeks. Another reform which was advocated by the Governor in his inaugural address will probably in time be blessed both by the workingmen and by the employers. This new law provides for the compulsory investigation of facts relating to labor disputes and the publication of the findings of the arbitration boards in these often disastrous controversies. Since public opinion nearly always decides a great labor conflict, this new law provides that public opinion shall be just by making it intelligent through the investigation and publication of the material facts.

The Governor, after a hard fight with the corporations and also with Acting Mayor Sullivan and his titular Mayor, succeeded in raising the tax on the great foreign corporations like the Oil Trust and the Beef Trust, which had been unjustly exempted from much of their proper taxation by an arbitrary limit in the excise tax law.

The present Legislature, heeding the Governor's recommendation, passed a resolve for an amendment to the Constitution which would enable the State to help people of small means to acquire their own homes.

The Legislature, under the Governor's leadership, passed to be submitted to the people the question whether women should have the right to vote on equal terms with men.

An act providing to help the farmers by providing for rural credits and making the lending of money on farm property on more liberal terms was passed this year.

The Governor caused to be enacted two most important laws relating to our public service corporations. One brought water power, electric power and water supply public service corporations under public regulation; the other makes it less difficult for our cities and towns to purchase their municipal lighting plants.

The Governor recommended the creation of a State Department to deal with the Fire Hazard in the Metropolitan district. That department has been created. Some advance was made in our corrupt practices law—insufficient, it is true, and far less than the Governor recommended, but still a step in advance.

The great armories of the State have been thrown open to various public uses. It was an extraordinary waste of capital to have let these magnificent structures stand idle during all the time that the militia was not using them. NOW they may be used freely for political, educational and other proper public uses.

The Legislature this year also abolished that cruel rule of the courts which required a dead man, killed by the negligence of a car, a machine, or by anybody else's negligence to prove after his voice had been stilled that he was not himself negligent.

The Governor has dealt with the railroad situation, critical and dangerous as it is, firmly and with a loyal guardianship of the public interest. It is no fault of his that this question is not now on the high road to settlement. He would not agree to throw away such voice as the Commonwealth might have in the control of her railroads.

The Governor has been a constructive statesman this year and a tactful political leader. The one is the complement of the other in our American politics.

There have been less betrayals of the party principles in the Democratic ranks in the Legislature under the Governor's leadership than for years before. The three conspicuous Democratic apostates were the two men from Mayor Curley's ward, Michael B. Kenney and John J. Reilly, who have disgraced their constituents by their subserviency to Mr. Curley; the third is Charles A. LeGro of Palmer.

The Democratic party in this State will have little to defend and much to glory in this year if the last chapter of the administration closes like the first.

If the Governor continues on the same course to the end the people will surely say, "WELL DONE, THOU GOOD AND FAITHFUL SERVANT."

An Englishman's Letters

From J. Percy Smith-Brown, Esquire, Hotel Pazazza, Boston, to H. Tthertington Bellingham-Cholomondly (pronounced Chumly) The Towers, Chorlton-cum-Hardy, Cirencester, near Stoke-Pennington the Lesser, Hants, England.

DEAR OLD TOP—This is an extraordinary country, old man, a most dashed extraordinary country, 'pon my honour.

The beastly telephone service over here has quite ruined my nerves. Everything is done with such a bally rush that it positively drives me barmy. Only yesterday I called up a tradesman of sorts, and here is the blasted conversation we had, as nearly as I can recall it. Remember, old cock, that the transatlantic speaks first, as I am taking the bally receiver down:

"Hello! (This is Cother fellow.) Are you there?" (This is I.)

"Hello, hello!

"Are you there?"

"What the—hello, hello!"

"I say, are you there?"

"Who's this—who's this? What is it—what is it?"

"Are you there, I say; are you there?"

"I tell you, you blithering lunatic—can't you hear me? No, you blinkety-blink-blink, I'm not the-ah; I'm right here, but I'll tell you this, that if I was there-ah, I'd hand you something. Die think I've no business to attend to, you pie-headed beauty?" Bang! (That was the fellow banging up the receiver.)

Fancy, old chap, I really had a bit of business to transact with the bounder, and he positively refused to tell me if he was there. Extraordinary conduct, I call it.

And by the bye, old boy, the rotter got my telephone number somehow or other and this morning he called me up. I took down the receiver, and here is our conversation, word for word.

"Are you there?" (Said the tradesperson.)

"Yes." (Said I.)

"I don't think you are."

The blighter hung up the telephone quite abruptly, as I was about to assure him that I really was "on the wire," as the rotters call it over here. I told my bally American friend, Vincent Breezer, about this talk, and he laughed till I thought he'd blasted well kick the bucket. "Ha, ha; he didn't think you were all there," said Breezer; "and gosh ding me if I blame the guy at that."

"Most unaccountable, eh, what?

This Breezer person is always telling me what he calls H'English stories, but the blooming chump never succeeds in making me laugh. I never laugh at any of the beastly yarns I hear over here anyway, as the rotters always tell me that I laugh in the wrong place. I fancy the blighters are jealous of our jolly old English sense of humour. In any event, this Breezer bloke began to tell me a story, which he called "a ripping H'English wheeze."

"Three bloods," said Breezer," were sitting in the window of a club looking out on Tottenham Court Road."

"My dear old man," said I, "there are no bally clubs on that bally road. Any bally rotter knows that."

"Shush, shush," said Breezer. "What does it matter what the street is called. The story's good anyway."

"But the Tot——"

"Shut up, your blooming H'English bonehead," said Breezer. "I am telling this story. The three bloods sit in their chairs, occasionally sipping their brandy and sodas. Not a word is spoken for an hour. Then, as an automobile goes down the street, one of the men pulls his mustache and says, 'Flat, by Jove.' Not another word for an hour and a half. Another automobile goes past. Second blood says, 'Lancia, damme.' Third blood picks up hat, stick and gloves. As he goes out, he says, 'Too much blasted argument in this club.'"

"Go on," said I. "What's the end of the dashed thing?"

"That's all," replied the Breezer person. "Too much blasted argument in this club."

"Well, there was wasn't there?" I asked.

"Oh, gee," said Breezer, "a doughnut's a hut, but it has no shell, and neither have you."

Bally extraordinary, don't you think so? These beastly Americans are so devilishly dense, I assure you, old man, that it's really impossible to converse intelligently with them. Quite so.

Your old pal, PERCY.

Per Wex Jones-Jones.

AFTER THE WEDDING

AN ILLUSTRATED STORY OF THE WAY A HOME WAS MADE

"Who is he?" asked Jennie.

When Tom lost his temper and had gone out, slamming the front door after him, Jennie sat looking at the door in utter amazement. She had never seen Tom get angry before. She did not think he ever could, because he had always given in to her and had tried to gratify her every wish. That is, as far as his limited pocketbook would allow.

As Jennie sat there wondering and about ready to cry, the two women acquaintances from upstairs stopped in to see her on their way down town. Jennie cheered up at once when they came in. And when they asked her if she didn't want to come along she answered, "I sure do."

As she was getting dressed one of her friends asked where Tom was. "Oh, he's gone out," answered Jennie. "You should worry then," said the woman. "Hurry up and put on your hat."

On the way down town Jennie asked them where they were going and they told her to the theatre. "I can't afford it," said Jennie. "Neither can we," said one of them, "but it's easy to get tickets when you know how."

After they arrived down town one of the women went to telephone. As she came out of the booth she said, "It's all right; he's going to leave three tickets for us and we are to meet him after the show; he couldn't get away to come with us."

"Who is HE?" asked Jennie.

"Oh, a friend of mine," the woman answered. "I'll introduce you after the show."—H. C.

A Few Marriage "Don'ts" for Milady Not-Yet-Wed

The Husband Puzzle Is as Old as Woman Herself, but Marital Results Indicate the Average Girl Is a Mighty Poor Guesser

WHAT kind of a man makes the best husband?

This is a conundrum that women are forever trying to solve, and, judging by the amount of marital unhappiness that we are about us, most ladies must be mighty poor guessers. Of course, in reality, as long as custom does not permit women to pop the question, they should not be blamed for getting misfit husbands. Their range of selection is limited to what they can get. They have to take what is offered them, instead of the one they might have preferred. Still, there is a choice among blessings, and even if a woman has to pick a husband out of a limited assortment it is worth while to exercise care and judgment upon it.

And here's one point for women to note—all of the qualities that make a man dazzling to the world, such as great beauty of face or form, social talents, cleverness, wit, genius, even extraordinary financial ability, militate against making him a good husband. So the very things that attract a woman to a man before marriage are the ones that make him undesirable as a husband.

In choosing a husband, girls, don't marry a very handsome man, for if you do you will always present an invidious contrast to him that people will remark upon, and beside him you will seem twice as homely and unattractive as you are. Moreover, a handsome man never admires anybody but himself; and in a family, if there is going to be any bouquet-throwing, it should be the woman who gets the nosegay instead of the man.

Beware of the Man Who Makes Love to You Too Perfectly

Don't marry a man who makes love beautifully and romantically. That is an accomplishment so rare and so fascinating that no man who possesses it can refrain from practising it. It's all right as long as you are the object of it, but after a while making love to his own wife palls on a man's taste. His words grow repelling with more "pep" in it, and he begins to quote poetry to other women. There is great safety in a husband who halts and stumbles in his speech, and who has to screw his feet around the rungs of a chair in order to brace up enough to call a woman "angel face."

Don't marry a man who is a philanthropist or who has a mission. All missions lead a man away from his own hearthstone, and philanthropy is too precious a commodity for family consumption. So far as his wife enjoying his society is concerned or getting any of his attentions, a man had as well be addicted to drink as to causes. Both will keep him out at night and use up his salary. The men who are uplifting humanity are generally letting their wives stand off the butcher. If charity doesn't begin at home it never gets there.

Don't marry a man who is too clever, and especially avoid a wit. A man who is a delightful raconteur and who can tell a good story in the most charming of acquaintances, and generally the most boring of husbands. Also, unless a woman is willing to be the butt of his jokes, she does well not to marry a humorist. He will make her faults, her foibles, her mistakes, her most sacred emotions, the subject of ridicule; and few women have a sufficiently well-developed funny-bone to enjoy a good story at their own expense.

Don't marry a man who thinks he knows it all. Every woman is glad and proud to sit at her husband's feet for a limited space of time and burn a reasonable amount of incense before him, but patient Griselda left few lineal descendants, and most feminists in these days have a pretty conceit of their own opinions, and like to air them now and then. The days of Sir Oracle are gone, and the hen as well as the cock, wants to share in ruling the roost.

Watch Out for Too Fine Sensibilities—You'll Tread on Them!

Don't marry a man with too fine sensibilities, for if you do you are sure to tread all over them. When you ask him for money you will lay him with your commercialism. In times of household stress, when the cook leaves and the beds are unmade and the dishes unwashed, the terrible materialism of domesticity will get upon his nerves. When the baby howls with the colic, and you are walking it garbed in bedroom slippers and a dressing gown, his aesthete soul will shiver away from you. The woman who marries a supersensitive man spends her life in doing the chores and trying to protect him from the hardships of existence; and, while he accepts her sacrifices, he considers himself a martyr for having missed his affinity.

Don't marry a famous man, because he belongs to the world and not to you. The most that a wife of a famous man can hope for is an infinitesimal portion of his heart, a fraction of his time, and a small degree of his interlove, his tenderness and his every interests. His wife is merely among those "also present" in his life. She is not the whole thing, and to read of the exploits of your husband in the newspapers is poor comfort compared to having his thought for yourself.

Don't marry a financial wizard. It's nice, of course, to have all the money you want to spend, but the man whose soul is engrossed in money-making has neither time nor thought to give to such small details as making his wife and children happy.

Many Girls Would Trade Entire Bank Accounts for Live Husbands

A cash register and a banknote are cold propositions to espouse, and many a woman who has them would be glad enough to exchange them for a real live, human husband without a dollar in his pocket.

The best kind of a husband is just the plain, every-day, good, honest fellow who thinks that the woman he marries is an angel and that he's done the biggest thing in the world in getting her. Such a marriage is not spectacular, but it is full of the happiness that is all wood and a yard wide and that stands the wear and tear of domestic life.

Where Is the Mary of Yesterday?

By NAN W. SPERRY

Assistant Commissioner of Labor, State of Missouri

WHERE is the Mary of yesterday—and the Carrie and Mollie and Kate? What are we trying to do with our names these days? Minnie our honored ancestors of a dead and gone day? The pendulum of names has swung, these few years back, from Fanny and Pearl and Maud, to Mary Ann, Martha and Jane. What of the change, too, has come a new generation. Carrie is Caroline now, and Hattie is Harriette.

The other day I met a girl who said her name was Kate, not Katheryn or Kathlene, or Catherine or Katrina, and I kept saying over and over "Kate, Kate, Kate"—it sounded so sweet and intimate.

Have you know a single Maggie that hasn't evoluted into Margaret? Or Lena who doesn't try to be called Leannah? And Helen—who of us hasn't an eighty-year-old sister so named? But she's changing back to Ellen now. What would she have done had we called her "Ellen" ten years ago? Oh, no; she was on the high tide of "Helen" then. Nannie and even Nan has slipped to the stately Nancy and Jane? If she be twenty we know that ten years she lived as Jennie, but no more.

What lovely Irish Patty hasn't changed to Patricia? And long since Lizzie and Betty and the soft carressing "Bessie" were forgotten. It's Elizabeth now. Yet there were the names our mothers bore. These were the names our fathers loved, but if we hear them still we do it a little shamefacedly, as if they didn't fit.

And maybe they don't exactly fit, but the most frivolous girl I ever knew was named Prudence, and a girl with a name like as Madonna and the disposition of an angel was called Fanchette.

One who never did an hour's willing work in her life bore the name Priscilla, and a little bundle of dimples and fun was Dolores. Evangeline, I remember, eloped with a youth who caught her fancy, and Faith was such a hypocite that her failing and her name, coupled together, made her a laughing stock.

Too often our parents name us as they would a poodle dog, forgetting that some day we will be grown up, and that styles in names change, as they do in gowns.

But when we find ourselves possessed of good substantial names, let's put aside the foolish juggling that may leave us as grandmothers, named Ada or Violet, and make the first name, given in love, one of which we are so proud that we will have no thought of changing it.
